A Dull Day, Rather Fighting and Thinking Debs Free, Perhaps Blonde Jury Ladies

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1921.

Nothing much happened in this world yesterday up to 7 o'clock in the evening. The French are fighting the Turks. The Russians are fighting each other. The English and Irish are fighting, and have been, off and on, for seven hundred years.

St. Patrick's Day was a great success. Bonar Law retired from the British government, which may or may not indicate a break-up in the strong machine that Lloyd George has managed for so long.

England says she will be glad to receive George Harvey as Ambassador. She will be, for Harvey knows what Harding thinks, and what Harding THINKS interests England. Harvey knows a lot of other things in addition to what Harding thinks. When the English King and Queen first hear what Harvey thinks about President Wilson they will probably be startled out of a year's growth. They are officially informed now that Harvey doesn't mean everything he says.

President Harding has asked the Attorney-General, Mr. Daugherty, to review the case of Eugene V. Debs, an old man in feeble health. Debs was never guilty of any act of violence. He expressed his opinion on the war, now ended. Under the Constitution he had a right to do that.

The only crime charged against him is believing what the majority of citizens do not believe.

President Harding, as far removed from Mr. Debs and Socialism as he is from Mr. Lenin and Bolshevism, shows his common sense in ordering the review of the Debs case.

Bankers learn something from Mr. Bridgeman, who has $12,000,000 in his bank at Stapleton, Staten Island. Any clerk in the bank, when highwaymen appear, can touch a button and set gigantic sirens screaming in the streets to summon every policeman and every citizen. The psychology of thieves makes them hate a loud noise. The idea is new and good. Order your siren.

William Morris, justice in a municipal court, denies that he is prejudiced against blonde women on juries. He was misquoted, never said blondes were fickle and unreliable. "Blondes and brunettes all look alike to me," he now says.

Lawyers, however, who soon will be dealing with lady jurymen, will bear in mind that blonde jury ladies are better for the defence—they are more apt to acquit, and brunettes to convict. Lawyers will discover that gradually, and brunettes will be amazed to hear themselves "challenged peremptorily."

England says this is no time to squander money on war, and the United States ought to stop building battleships.

BUT, yesterday in the House of Commons, James Craig, secretary to the admiralty, announced that four great warships would be started this year, ships of more than forty thousand tons each.

That is interesting, and interesting also is the fact that English officers are teaching the Japanese all that England knows about the use of flying machines in war. England learned a good deal recently and is teaching Japan.

And if Japan, with Asia back of her, ever comes against the white races, it will not be in the old-fashioned way, on the backs of ponies, as Attila came, but on the wings of flying machines.

The "Customs Cutters' Club," headquarters in New York city, which creates "fashion," decided that suspenders are part of the past. No more suspender buttons. That might do for the young, who, in perfect condition, can press on the abdomen and feel the backbone through the intervening tissue. But the end of suspender buttons where fat, or moderately fat, men are concerned, would mean too much prosperity for undertakers. On a sloping surface, a belt must be so tight as to endanger health. The ancient Gauls took the young warrior in his prime, put around his waist a metal ring that fitted exactly and warned him not to get fat. That kept him exercising. It would be well if the same could be done to fat business men, but it can't. Therefore, suspender buttons should be retained. Put the weight on your shoulders, not on the large colon.

IRISH PLEA BY WOMEN TO MRS. HARDING

President's Wife Asked to Aid in Relieving Distress in Erin

Dublin, March 18.—Five women leaders in Ireland have appealed to Mrs. Harding to aid in securing relief and sympathy in America for the women and children of Ireland, many of whom are homeless and dying.

St. Patrick's Day was a day of mourning here. There were no parades.

Two policemen were killed in an attack on a patrol at Clifden, the birthplace of Phelan, one of the men who was executed Monday morning at Mountjoy Prison. The police combed the district after the shooting and one man was shot dead while attempting to escape.

Cardinal Logue and Archbishop Walsh are among the foremost of those named as figuring in the new peace negotiations.

STOCK YARD WORKERS FAVOR STRIKE

Chicago, March 18.—Returns from the strike referendum taken by stock yards workers throughout the United States were still coming in today. Unofficial returns indicate an overwhelming vote in favor of a strike. In Chicago early figures showed a ratio of almost 14 to 1 for a walkout, while reports from St. Paul, Denver, Omaha, Kansas City, Fort Worth and other centers indicated that the vote in these cities strongly favored a strike.

FUGITIVE IS FOUND HIDING IN COAL BIN

Taxi Driver, Who Fled From Court, Discovered in Arlington, Invited Arrest

Steven Korkenagos, Haverhill taxi cab driver, who escaped from Woburn court yesterday after being held for a hearing for implication in the holdup of eighteen gamblers at North Reading, was found today hiding in the coal bin of the cellar of Arthur J. Hendrick on Court street, Arlington Centre.

Exhausted and frightened he calmly went to Mr. Hendrick's kitchen, awaiting the arrival of the police to re-arrest him.

Korkenagos was discovered sitting on the coal in the cellar when Hendrick went to put fuel in the furnace. The fugitive made known his identity and requested his discoverer to telephone the police. He was fed by Mr. Hendrick and he made no resistance when Lieutenant Daniel M. Hickey of the Arlington police placed him under arrest.

The prisoner had been seen earlier in the day walking the Boston & Maine tracks toward Lexington and a detail of police had been ordered out to look for him.

He was taken to Arlington station and then to the East Cambridge Jail to await disposition of his case next Tuesday.

Korkenagos had been hunted through woods of Arlington and North Reading all night and had been without food at several times.

The searchers included State police officers and patrolmen of the Woburn, Arlington and North Reading departments.

RUSSIAN REBELS BLOW UP SHIPS AND ESCAPE

Helsingfors, March 18.—Large number of the anti-Bolshevik insurgents who were defeated at the fortress of Kronstadt have fled into Finland. The rebels blew up the warships Petropavlosk and Sebastopol before they fled. Kronstadt, both the town and the forts surrounding it, is in the hands of the Reds, who have begun to repair the damage done by the heavy fighting in that district.

Mexicans are believed also to have been hit.

The shooting started when an immigration inspector called on three Mexicans seen wading across the Rio Grande to halt. The Mexicans are said to have opened fire which the immigration officers returned. Riflemen ambushed along the Mexican side joined in the shooting and United States troops likewise entered the fray.

Firing continued almost steadily until an early hour this morning.

AGREE ON PLAN TO RUSH BONUS MEASURE

Washington, March 18.—House and Senate leaders today announced agreement on a plan to push soldier bonus legislation during the early weeks of the special session of Congress to meet April 11.

The soldiers' aid bill will be introduced as soon as Congress meets and action will be obtained at once," Representative Fordney of Michigan, chairman of the House Ways and Means committee, announced today.

His announcement was supplemented by an announcement by Senator Penrose, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, that "the soldiers' bonus bill will be disposed of during the early days of the special session."

It has not been determined whether the bill will carry revenue provisions to care for the bonus, but the general opinion is that these provisions will be taken care of as part of the regular revenue program and that the bonus bill will merely authorize bonus payments.

ACCIDENT PUTS OFF TRIAL OF BRIGHTWELLS

Defendant Cooper Slightly Injured; Judge Fessenden Again Warns Jurors

An accident in which Defendant Frank J. Cooper of Melrose was slightly injured halted the trial of thirteen former officers and agents of the Old Colony Foreign Exchange Company today.

Word was received by Judge Fessenden, presiding at the trial in Superior Court, that Cooper was under a physician's care following a mishap not described.

Judge Fessenden had before that declared Cooper in default, and issued a warrant for his arrest. He rescinded both actions, and dismissed the jury until Monday, by that time it is expected the injured defendant will be able to appear in court.

In dismissing the jury the court again warned them not to read newspaper accounts of the trial.

EXPLOSION IN ALBANY STRIKE WRECKS CAR

Albany, N. Y., March 18.—Police today were investigating an explosion which late last night partly wrecked a trolley car, injuring two persons and blowing the glass from houses in the vicinity. Three arrests were made early today.

The explosion culminated a series of minor outbreaks against strike-breaker manned cars of the United Traction Company.

A motorcycle with side car, in which State troops were riding ahead of the car as a guard, was blown on the sidewalk by the force of the explosion. Trooper Merl Holmes was slightly injured. An automobile load of police, also acting as an escort, was blown against the curbing. John Hermon, an invalid, was injured by flying glass.

The wrecked car was known as the "Strike-breaker special," and was used to convey the strike-breakers from the Quail street carbarns to the North Albany barns. On its first trip, less than fifteen minutes before the explosion, the car was jammed with strike-breakers. It was empty except for its crew when the explosion occurred.

RAIL BOARD GETS DEMANDS OF UNIONS

Arbiters Told Labor's Policy is in Accord With Attitude of Harding

By International News Service.

Chicago, March 18.—Declaring that the attitude of labor over the national railway agreements and the recently announced wage cuts has been in entire accord with President Harding's policy of adjusting differences before they result in conflict, B. M. Jewell, president of the railway employes department of the American Federation of Labor, went before the Railway Labor Board today and presented the case of the employes.

Jewell submitted to the board what he termed a "concrete proposal" satisfactory to labor in which he laid down "Eleven fundamentals which constitute labor's irreducible bill of rights."

The eleven fundamentals Jewell enumerated as follows:

"Eight hours as the recognized measure of the standard work day with an adequate hourly wage.

"Payment for time worked in excess of the regular eight hours at proper overtime rates for the various characters of service rendered.

THE HOURS OF WORK.

"The beginning and ending of working shifts to be so arranged as to permit of reasonable living arrangements by employes and their families.

"Reasonable rules for the protection, health and safety of employes.

"Clear and concise definition of the work of each craft to be performed by workers and helpers.

"The formulation of apprenticeship rules so as to develop sufficient competent and efficient mechanics.

"Applicants for employment as mechanics to be required to show that they have served an apprenticeship of four years or performed mechanical work for a similar period, and they are not to be denied employment when their services are needed, for any reason other than their inability to perform the work for which they are making application for employment.

UNION REPRESENTATION.

"The right of the majority of each craft to determine what organization shall represent them. This organization to have the right to make an agreement which shall apply to workers of all crafts.

"The right of the majority of each craft on each railroad to select a committee of representatives who shall handle all grievances which may arise affecting employes of the craft in accordance with the provisions of the production one described.

"Limiting seniority to the local shops or points and not permitting interchange of seniority with other shops, crafts or departments of railroads.

"The right to organize and the protection of employes against discrimination because of membership in labor organizations or for any other reason."

AN EDITORIAL ON ADVERTISING

GALILEO, inventor of the telescope, gave to the world another discovery which revolutionized astronomy. Scientifically, the value of the telescope cannot be computed in dollars and cents. But COMMERCIALLY the telescope is a constructive failure. Too few people can find any use for it.

In a commercial sense, the value of an article is measured by the number of people who can make practical use of it. And these people are educated to the USES of an article through ADVERTISING.

Advertising convinced the public that the automobile was not merely a conveyance but a PRIME NECESSITY OF LIFE.

Advertising featured the automobile as a medium for saving time and money, for increasing efficiency, opening up new avenues of business, preserving health, for shortening the mind and adding to the enjoyment of life.

By educating men and women to the manifold USES to which the automobile could be applied, advertising created one of the foremost industries in the United States and gave available pleasure and employment to millions of people.

Unsurpassed production, brought about by the huge demand for automobiles, made possible the dependable motor cars which are sold at a price so available to those of moderate means.

Without the far-reaching educational influence of advertising, millions of people would be without many of the most potent aids to health, happiness and comfort.

Many advertisers employ advertising first to get people to USE something. Then they use advertising to persuade them continuously to employ NEW WAYS of using these products. New ways mean new sales, additional profits and bigger business. Advertiser and consumer profit alike.

During the past twelve months a manufacturer has discovered ONE HUNDRED AND THREE NEW USES for his product THROUGH ADVERTISING.

These hundred and three NEW USES, developed and described through advertising, means thousands of NEW USERS for this manufacturer's product. Quantity Production is the result and quantity production cuts down manufacturing costs and reduces the prices to the consumer.

Advertising is not only the power which generates quantity production and lowers prices, but advertising also insists on high quality.

No manufacturer who expects to stay in business will put his trademark on a product unless he knows that the product is up to the highest standards of quality in the trade considered.

The consumer has learned to look upon a Trade-mark as an endorsement of the goodness and purity of the commodity it identifies. If the merchandise does not come up to his expectations he knows where to go to get redress. No advertised article can long endure if it does not consistently make good.

Employes manufacturing an advertised commodity realize their responsibility in helping to maintain the high-set standards of quality. Any let-down on their part is inevitably discovered and traced back to the source. There is no such responsibility involved in the making or marketing of unadvertised, unmarketed merchandise. It has no identification mark; therefore offers the purchaser no redress in case of dissatisfaction.

During the period of inflated prices—1914 to 1920—it is interesting to note that ADVERTISED ARTICLES WERE THE LAST TO BE RAISED IN PRICE.

From a check-up of 52 per cent. of the advertised proprietary articles on the shelves of druggists throughout the country, the average price increase from the low period of 1914 to the highest period of 1920 was something less than 17 per cent. The average increase in price for the complete line of non-trade-marked proprietaries was over 137 per cent.

During the era of price inflation hundreds of instances are cited of national advertisers who took large losses for season rather than increase the price of their standard trade-marked merchandise.

Advertising virtually insures a manufacturer's sales for his entire output. He is thus able to plan and carry out his manufacturing schedule on a yearly ahead basis. His records show that regardless of the times or seasons, his advertising eventually will move his product. If his goods are not sold today they will be sold tomorrow.

That is why the plants of the great national advertisers are now running on full time, whereas the factories of non-advertisers in many instances are shut down.

Advertising furthermore attracts workers to the factories of advertisers. It is significant that during the present time exodus of labor, factories manufacturing advertised commodities were able to secure competent help. On the other hand, competitive concerns turning out non-branded merchandise were compelled to run short-handed.

In the present era of price adjustment, advertising has been a mighty influence in solving the financial problems of many organizations. Financial interests prefer to invest their money with concerns that advertise and make their loans on advertised products. Their security in the great purchasing power of millions of consumers.

Sixty-four per cent. of commercial failures which have occurred during the past twelve months were non-advertisers.

Surely a force which reduces the risk of business failures and which has so unmistakably demonstrated itself as a vital factor in turning success into a mightier factor of our economic existence.

To the readers of this paper we commend the value of carefully reading the advertising columns and then purchasing the goods you see advertised therein. Your money will go further, because of your share in the benefits of quantity production, collective purchasing powers, manufacturing efficiency and the immense sales of nationally advertised merchandise. The wide-spread prestige of the advertised brand is a binding piece of bigger value and greater satisfaction for your money than in nameless, nondescript merchandise with no incentive of reputation and responsibility behind it.

Orange and Green Clash at Athol High School

Athol, March 18.—A state of "armed neutrality" exists between the "Orangemen" and "Irishmen" among the High School pupils today, following one of the liveliest fist fights seen within the scholastic precincts since the school was built.

After assembly, on the way to classes, a number of other pupils, wearing proudly the green of the shamrock, resented the appearance of the yellows. Before peace settled down again, clothing had been torn, eyes blacked, lips cut and noses bloodied. Three pupils, Clifton Folsombee, Edmund Harrigan and Michael C. Hartney, were suspended for the day.

ANOTHER BEAUTY MENTIONED IN MRS. STILLMAN'S CHARGES

NAMED AS RIVAL OF MRS. LEEDS

Banker's Wife Says She Hopes to Make Her Position Clear to Public

By International News Service.

New York, March 18.—Further sensational revelations were promised today in the divorce tangle of James A. Stillman, the multi-millionaire banker, and his wife, the former "Fifi" Potter, which threatened to involve another beautiful young woman in their melodramatic mixture of love, jealousy and high finance.

So far Mrs. Stillman has used only the name of "Mrs. Florence Leeds," former chorus girl, but there are persistent reports that she may name another young woman whose beauty is said to rival that of the handsome and dashing "Mrs. Leeds."

Mrs. Stillman's charges parallel those of her husband and have involved the good name and birthright of a second little child. She alleges that Mr. Stillman is the father of an illegitimate child—thirty months old —whose mother is "Mrs. Leeds." This accusation was made [illegible] Stillman's charges that he was not the father of Mrs. Stillman's little son, Guy.

Mr. Stillman has not yet entered formal denial of his wife's charges that he lived with "Mrs. Leeds" in New York city and elsewhere. So far as known, no testimony has been taken upon this point by the referee. Supreme Court Justice Mordaunt at White Plains today handed down an order directing that next Wednesday morning arguments shall be made on the motion of Mrs. Stillman to require Mr. Stillman to name his financial status and on the motion for $10,000 a month alimony and $25,000 counsel fees. There can now be no further postponement of the arguments unless a delay is agreed to by Mrs. Stillman's attorneys.

RESIGNATION DENIED.

The case took a new turn today, when it was rumored in Wall street that Mr. Stillman might resign from the presidency of the great National City Bank, one of the biggest and most powerful financial institutions in the world.

Mr. Stillman refused to see any reporters, but John H. Fulton, general executive manager of the bank, said there was no foundation for the report.

Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Company, a subsidiary of the bank, said that there was no truth in the rumor so far as he knew. In the meantime, Mrs. Stillman is living in seclusion with her little sons, Guy and Alexander, at Laurel-in-the-Pines at Lakewood, N. J.

MRS. STILLMAN'S CHARGES.

According to the latest documents filed Mr. Stillman is charged with infidelity over a period of three years beginning in September 1917. Mrs. Stillman accuses him of living with "Mrs. Leeds" as husband and wife in the apartment house at 64 East Eighty-sixth street. According to Mrs. Stillman the husband posed as "Franklin Harold Leeds" and "Mrs. Leeds' baby was named Jay Leeds. He was born in September 1918. Mrs. Leeds is reported to be in Florida.

"I must be considered only as an exhibit in this case for my lawyers will not allow me to say a word," said Mrs. Stillman today. "The fight is in the courts and there is nothing for me today. I have been under a severe strain for some time and am very weary. Later on, I hope to be able to explain my situation in my own way to the public."

SOLLEY, BEFORE COURT, PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Loyal Coalition Secretary Held in $5,000 Bail; No Trial Date Set

George W. Solley, executive secretary of the Loyal Coalition, was arraigned before Judge Irwin in Superior Court today on three indictments charging serious statutory offenses.

He pleaded not guilty and was held in $5,000 bail for trial. No date was set.

The charges grew out of difficulties the Coalition official had with Corinthian Christopher O'Hare, a former Canadian soldier. O'Hare and his wife have both brought civil suits against him.

The indictments allege that the offenses charged were committed over a period of four years.

There are eleven counts in the third indictment, which is the most serious.

Solley appeared in person, accompanied by Charles C. Ramsey, his attorney. He was apparently in good spirits.

There were only a few persons in the court room, as the time of his arraignment had not been announced.

Demarest Lloyd and other officers of the Loyal Coalition have signified their intention of giving Solley moral and material support in his difficulties.

FORGIVING ALDERMAN THREATENS TO FIGHT

Lawrence, March 18.—A week ago Alderman Edward C. Callahan, commissioner of public health and charities, was struck on the jaw by a man to whom he refused a job. Callahan then forgave his assailant and also gave him work. Since then the believer in the Scriptural advice of turning the other cheek has been threatened a score of times by job seekers. Callahan was again threatened with a punching today by one of the unemployed, but he refused the request and announces that next time drastic methods are used he will retaliate—but not as before.

WAGES CUT, LANDLORD REDUCES RENT 15 P. C.

Whitinsville, March 18.—This town boasts a landlord for whom his tenants have a real affection. Frank Koz is his name. The tenants came to him with this month's rent, but he handed them back 15 per cent, explaining that as their wages had been reduced he thought they were entitled to a reduction in rent.

Judge Charles S. Sullivan, newly elected president of the Charitable Irish Society, disclaimed for Irish-Americans any desire to embroil the United States and Great Britain in a war, speaking at the anniversary dinner of the association.

However, he claimed the right to protest in the interest of any oppressed people, and denounced British outrages in Ireland. He also declared that the capacity of the Irish for self-government had been demonstrated in his country.

The Rev. Dr. John Cavanaugh, professor at the Catholic University, D. C., told the 400 guests that St. Patrick was the only man who ever succeeded in getting all the Irish to think alike on any one subject.

He said the influence of St. Patrick's teaching had prevented any Irish Catholic from lighting a faggot to burn a heretic or persecute or send to death a single man or woman on account of their religion.

Judge Sullivan was introduced by James A. Dorsey, retiring president, and Arthur W. Dolan, register of probate, was toastmaster.

Governor Cox, the first speaker, praised the record of the Irish in Massachusetts and of the Irish Charitable Society members in every crisis of the nation.

Congressman James O'Connor of Louisiana, the guest of Congressman James A. Gallivan, who sat beside him, paid a tribute to Boston and termed Mr. Gallivan a splendid example of the glorious patriots reared in Massachusetts. He declared that three-fifths of the people of this country are of Irish blood.

He blamed the English government for the trouble in Ireland, declaring the English people were not to blame. He added that Ireland must take its place among the nations of the earth.

Brigadier-General Edward L. Logan spoke at length in behalf of the relief fund for suffering Ireland.

Mayor Peters, referring to Washington and the evacuation of Boston by the British, declared that Americanism is not a matter of ancestry. Americanism, he said, was a spirit passed on from one generation to another and any individual may be a good American, no matter what his origin.

Mayor Peter F. Sullivan of Worcester spoke briefly, and songs were rendered by J. Mitchel Galvin and Mayor Edward W. Quinn of Cambridge. John A. Kiggen had charge of the community singing, and the entertainment was in charge of John J. Keenan, secretary of the society, and ex-President Dorsey.

MARY GARDEN TO GIVE UP HER JOB TO A MAN

Cincinnati, March 18.—A man is to succeed Mary Garden as manager of the Chicago Metropolitan Opera Company, she announced on her arrival here. He has been selected, she said, and will become impressario when she has completed one year in the place.

SUIT AGAINST PURPLE MOTHER IS SURPRISE

Mrs. Tingley, Who Lost $100,000 Alienation of Affections Case, Well Known Here

Boston admirers of Mrs. Katherine Tingley, who as the "Purple Mother" of the theosophical movement, is well known in Boston and Newburyport, heard with surprise today that a verdict of $100,000 for alienating the affections of Dr. George F. Mohn has been returned against her in court at San Diego, Cal.

The suit was one of the most sensational ever tried on the Pacific Coast, where Mrs. Tingley is now as well known as she once was as the mistress of Laurel Terrace in Newburyport.

Dr. Mohn is a former pupil of the "Purple Lotus Mother," as Mrs. Tingley is known. He and his wife joined the Point Loma colony of theosophists, presided over by Mrs. Tingley, fifteen years ago.

Dr. Mohn was one of the leaders in the colony, known as the "Homestead," and Mrs. Mohn was among the most active supporters of Mrs. Tingley, the high priestess of theosophy.

The first indication of trouble in the Mohn family came in 1918, when Mrs. Mohn packed her belongings and with scant ceremony left the "Homestead" and went to San Diego. Dr. Mohn did not accompany her.

The alienation of affections suit was filed not long afterward. Mrs. Mohn sought $200,000. The $100,000 verdict is one of the biggest ever awarded as heart balm in California.

Mrs. Tingley succeeded Mme. Blavatsky as "high priestess" of theosophy, which title goes with rulership of the Point Loma colony. She has been a striking and picturesque figure as head of the cult.

Karma and reincarnation are the basic pillars of the Tingley philosophy, and by her methods she has brought there two beliefs more prominently before the general public than they ever were before.

Mrs. Tingley was born in Newburyport. A woman of means, she attracted to the movement many others of wealth and refinement.

Some years ago she purchased the "Lord" Dexter estate in Newburyport, and rehabilitated the old mansion.

STOKES DIVORCE CASE HALTED INDEFINITELY

Defence Given Time to Prepare Evidence to Meet Charges of 15 Co-respondents

New York, March 18.—The "Manhattan Nights" tales of the Stokes divorce case came to an abrupt conclusion with an indefinite adjournment subject to call.

The evidence on which W. E. D. Stokes, millionaire, sportsman and proprietor of the Hotel Ansonia, asks a decree of divorce from Helen Elwood Stokes is complete, with the final chapters devoted to the allegations involving the name of Edgar T. Wallace, now of San Francisco.

Since Justice Finch has allowed a practical consolidation of the new suit naming Wallace with the earlier action, naming a group of some fifteen co-respondents, the defence is now given time for the preparation of evidence to meet the added charges.

An additional allowance of $7,500 for legal expenses to be incurred by the defense on the Wallace phase was ordered by the court. This brings the total of defense allowances to $19,500.

MISS MAXWELL STANDS ON HER MERITS

Unconfirmed Appointee to State Office Sure Justice Will Prevail

"I will stand on my merits and let my friends speak for me or against me, as their judgment dictates. The truth may never be downed. What a man can do, and what a woman can do, may never be taken from them. I have faith that justice will prevail.

This is the statement of Miss Annie H. Maxwell, recently named second deputy State auditor, whose appointment was not confirmed by the Governor and Council.

Friends of Miss Maxwell state that the salary appropriated for the late second deputy is absolutely no law to Miss Maxwell, and that the Council knows this.

At this the House today friends of Miss Maxwell are blaming the "fols" for "passing the buck" because she is a woman. Influential friends of the new appointee are doing what they can, and delaying her with telephone messages. Meanwhile she sits quietly, with a smile on her face, and the courage of New England in her manner.

"I don't want this position as second deputy auditor of Massachusetts," if I am not fit for it. I don't wish to earn a dollar that I am not qualified to earn. I will not say that my qualifications come up to the requirements. All I will say is that I have been here in this office for five years.

SATISFIED COOK.

"I have served for that term as private secretary to Auditor Cook. I seem to have satisfied Mr. Cook. Perhaps this speaks for itself.

"I don't believe in talking injustice before the vice injustice has been done. I am a Republican. I have faith that the inherent justice of the Republican party and its leaders is not to be dimmed by any matter of political preference or by question of sex.

"If I am confirmed, the Republican party would then have put the second woman in all the State, on the payroll, for a salary of $5,000. There are quite a few State appointive positions for women, but only one woman in Massachusetts in a State position who holds the high salary of $5,000.

"Since last October I have assisted Mr. Hoyt as second deputy State auditor, and received $1,620, the salary of a stenographer. I have strongly belief in Auditor Cook to believe that he would not have appointed me if he didn't think I could do the work.

STANDS ON MERITS.

"I like my duties here. I have always tried to do them as well as I know how. If I prove to be fit, I would be glad of the appointment. I stand on my merits, like justice and eternal truth, and all the great things which neither time nor man may change. And I ask for the confirmation, not as a woman, but merely as an expert, according to the ability I have for the place."

To which Auditor Cook amended: "There are many women in this office and other offices all over the State who do the work required of them better than men.

"I am the exponent of equal pay for equal brains, and I don't care whether it's a man or a woman. It's the ability to get the job done, and not the way they dress, which has always interested me.

May Break Warmest March Record

Indications are that all records for the warmest March will be broken this year. The record so far was in 1903, when March had an average temperature of 44.4, and a total excess of temperature throughout the month of 216. The average temperature so far for this month is 44, and the total excess of temperature is 214, with almost half the month to go.

CLARA HAMON MAY GO INTO MOVIES

By CLARA SMITH HAMON.

Copyright, 1921, by International News Service.

Ardmore, Okla., March 18.—I have been vindicated. Twelve men have weighed the evidence and have cleared me. I am free—declared innocent of the charge of killing in cold blood the man I loved and still love.

The jury did not clear me because I was a woman. The truth was on my side and it could not do otherwise. Freedom means only one thing to me—the chance to make up for the past.

I have victory over those who conspired with all the millions and power at their command to convict me—by lies. This is all the triumph I have had. The years have no triumph. I had the man I loved but the price I paid was—

Wrecked health, degradation, shame.

There is only one lesson to draw from my life—no one can violate the laws of God and man with impunity. Now I publish hereafter I am free to make up for the past. I have no immediate plans other than to go to California or somewhere for a long rest.

I have had offers from many moving picture companies which seek to film the story of my life. I have signed no contract as yet and do not know whether I shall or not.

I have told all who have made me offers that I would rather work as a stenographer for $25 a week than parade my past for millions unless through the medium of pictures I can carry to the world the moral message of my life.

If I sign a contract it will not be for an Al Jennings or a Henry Starr sort of picture. My life will not be made "unto me," yet English soldiers are murdering and terrorizing the little children of Ireland for the amusement of the degraded Georges. The British Empire is a stinking pool, the lifeblood of that little nation.

TIME FOR ACTION.

The time for sympathy and resolutions has passed. What Ireland needs is action to preserve the life of its nation. We should organize politically for the relief of Ireland. Put men into office who will keep faith with us in the negotiation of the Irish Republic. We should begin an economical boycott against English-made goods. Americans must be made to understand that they are responsible for the action of their government.

Slow, but Oh, My!

Miami and St. Petersburg, Florida, have jumped several hundred per cent in population in the past ten years, according to one of the thousands of interesting facts disclosed by a glance at the 1920 census, printed in booklet form free with next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

URGES BOYCOTT ON GOODS FROM ENGLAND

Episcopal Clergyman Principal Speaker at Providence Irish Celebration

Providence, R. I., March 18.—England and the atrocities she has committed in Ireland were bitterly denounced by Rev. Dr. Albert W. Allen, an Episcopal clergyman of Brooklyn, N. Y., at the twenty-first annual banquet of the Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick held in the Narragansett Hotel.

Dr. Allen went back through the ages to the days of Cromwell and told of the brutalized relations upon the Irish peoples and compared them with the atrocities of the Huns, the Turks and other nations in such a way as to make the latter appear inconsequential. His remarks were warmly applauded and cheered by the more than 500 who were present.

Dr. Allen touched at length upon the folly of religious bigotry and declared that religion did not enter into the Irish question. He went back through history and showed that the majority of Irish leaders and patriots were Protestants and branded the religious question that has been instilled into the Irish question as insidious propaganda.

LED BY PROTESTANTS.

"The leadership for more than a century and a quarter was under Protestants," he declared. "The only Catholic leaders of Ireland's cause for years were Daniel O'Connell in 1305 and Redmond in 1909. How can anyone say that there are religious differences in the Irish cause?

"Today the house of the Irish Republic is four-square and is proof against the hallstorm of the British because it is founded on rocks of God's eternal justice.

"An English judge sitting in Ireland recently handed down the opinion that a state of war existed between Ireland and England. If that is so there is a different status existing and the international court of there be sought should demand that Irish prisoners be treated as prisoners of war and accorded the same justice.

"Here in America we present atrocities visited upon the people of Ireland to the higher court of justice that controls the world and the bloodthirsty, tyrannical nation that she is. The clergymen of England are screaming, 'Suffer the little children to come unto me,' yet English soldiers are murdering and terrorizing the little children of Ireland in the name of something worse atrocities than those of the days of Ancient Rome. The British Empire is a stinking pool, the lifeblood of that little nation."

News of Motion Picture World

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

"AT last I've played to Boston audiences!" Francis X. Bushman exclaimed after the matinee at Keith's the other day. "In all the years I've been on the stage—and I was an actor long before I went into pictures—this is the first time I've been here publicly. I've come up to see about my films and I've been through here on vacation trips, but to play before the people of this city has been one of my ambitions.

"Frankly I'll tell you that among the theatrical and vaudeville circles it is constantly said that Boston is the hardest city 'to play,' as we call it. There have been various reasons given for this, but no one has really hit the nail on the head.

"For example, an actor can tell just what his reception will be in the various parts of the country. In the West they are eager to see what you have to offer; politely so. In the South they are more quietly receptive, and at the end of your little song-and-dance they applaud vigorously. But Boston is different.

"When we gave a little satire on Monday afternoon, the audience simply sat back quietly and—wailed. There was no way to tell what their feelings were or how they liked the show or us. Even after it was over they were more restrained in their applause than most audiences. Not that they weren't enthusiastic. They were. But it was a rather calculating, thoughtful reception.

BOSTONIANS NOT LED.

"That's why the best actors like to play here. Bostonians, they maintain, are not led by the first-nighters. In other cities if an inner circle comes out strong for a show, or if they don't like it, then the rest of the city follows blindly.

"The people here, though, don't follow anybody, I expect that if a play had won the wildest enthusiasm throughout the rest of the United States and Europe, and then came here, the Bostonians wouldn't lose their heads for a minute. They'd reserve their opinions until they had 'been shown.' It's a great trait. We're always sure of a square deal."

YOUNG RICHARD AND HAMLET.

Then it was time to leave. Mrs. Bushman, known to movie fans as Beverley Bayne, came out with their highly excited nineteen-months-old son, Richard. He had just been taken out front to see the last act, a marionette show, and his eyes were big and shining as he told about it.

"Tell about the dragon breathing fire," Mrs. Bushman prompted him.

"Oh, hot! Hot! Hot!" Richard exclaimed.

"And what else did you see?"

"See!" he repeated. "Oh, bloons, and—bloons and—hot! Hot!"

Then they started out the stage door, Mr. Bushman carrying Richard, Mrs. Bushman following, and then Hamlet, Mr. Bushman's huge "melancholy Dane."

"Hamlet's been in many of our pictures," they said. And Hamlet wagged his tail solemnly as they forged their way through the hordes of fans crowding up to the door.

Extra! All about the big fight! One of the hits of the benefit given by the movie folk of Hollywood some time ago for charity organizations in that city was the boxing match between Douglas Fairbanks and "Kid" McCoy. Here's the line-up after the fight: Earle Williams and Billy Mason, referees; Charlie Chaplin, second and "third and fourth," as he expressed it; "Kid" McCoy and "Doug."

DORALDINA TO REMAIN.

MADAME DORALDINA, who is to the hula hula what Sir Oliver Lodge is to the ouija board, will not leave the screen for the dancing stage, as rumors have stated. She is already making plans to star in a series of films to be made on the West coast.

At present she is making personal appearances throughout the East where her newest picture, "Passion Fruit," is being shown.

NEW YORK MOVIE BALL.

ONE of the things keeping the screen world agog now is the huge movie ball to be held in New York on April 5 at the Hotel Astor. All the big stars and players in the East will be there as well as many of the players on the legitimate stage.

Among those who have already taken boxes are Marion Davies, Lillian and Dorothy Gish, David Wark Griffith, Pearl White, William Marhum and Owen Moore.

NEXT FILMLANDS?

ONCE AGAIN Hollywood is in danger of having the honor of being the film centre of America taken away from her. New York has grown remarkably during the past few years, speaking from a film point of view. Studios have sprung up all over Long Island and up the Hudson River, while there are quite a number in the city itself. Times Square is quite a nest of studios now.

New England has been spoken of many times as a future centre, but so far we have but three or four studios and few of them have working companies. Roving bands of players, camera men and directors appear throughout the Northern States of New England occasionally, but they have come from New York and take but a few scenes here and then disappear.

Now Jacksonville, Fla., is coming to the fore. New York producers have often said that they had rather have out-of-town studios in Florida than on the West coast for the reason that California scenery has been "shot to pieces." The same settings have been used over so many times that we recognize them now. The South has the same type scenery to offer and has the added advantage of being several days nearer. Already studios are being built, but it is a question whether it will supplant Los Angeles.

CAMERA CLICKS.

TOD BROWNING, the director, is looking for a girl who can play the title role of "Fanny Herself," taken from Edna Ferber's popular story. Ethel Barrymore played "Fanny" on the stage some years ago.

GRIFFITH'S newest release, "Dream Street," had its first showing the other day in Middletown, New York. It's been customary to try out legitimate shows on the "dog-towns," as they call them, but to try out films is something new. Griffith and his staff journeyed up to see the opening and find out how it affected the audience.

SPEAKING of Griffith reminds me that "Down East" and a story we heard Taking scenes for "The Evil Hair" she was crossing the ice over the Merced River in California with a dog-team. The ice had cracked a dozen feet above the point being filmed, and suddenly she and dogs were floating rapidly downstream. Norman Dawn, the director, had to imitate Richard Bathelmess in a rescue stunt.

A NEW moving picture producing company is appearing, the Frontier Features, Inc., of New York. Anders Randolph is the president and the leading man. As soon as he decides on his supporting company he will start work. His location for his first picture will be the Bahamas.

A Sure Way to End Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.—Advertisement.

IRISH FUND WELL STARTED IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

Manchester, N. H., March 18.—The State-wide drive for funds for relief in Ireland started with more than $2,000 of the State's quota already subscribed. Reports at headquarters indicate that the amount contributed will be nearer $100,000 than the quota fixed by the American committee.

A number of contributions of $500, including one from Rt. Rev. George Albert Guertin, bishop of the diocese, and one from the Knights of Columbus, have already been received.

Smaller Crops Are Seen by Wallace

Washington, March 18. — No concerted movement among the farmers of the country to curtail planting for the coming season is seen in reports to the Department of Agriculture, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace announced today.

Scarcity of labor and the desire of some farmers to plant overworked land in grass will decrease the size of the nation's crops, however, the secretary added.

Higgins. He testified to seeing his sister run from her home with wounds in her head and neck, and to finding the body of his mother. Both were killed by rifle bullets. Freed on Desertion Grounds After Name of Blanche Sweet Is Mentioned

Los Angeles, Cal., March 18.—Mrs. Gertrude Hambrick Neilan is free of marital bonds.

Judge Summerfield granted her a divorce from Marshall A. Neilan, widely known film director and producer, and gave her the custody of their six-year-old boy, Marshall, Jr.

$22 BILLION LUXURY COST IN 1920

U. S. Spent $6,000,000 More in Year Than in All Time for Education

Washington, March 18.—The people of the United States spent $6,000,000 more for luxuries in the single year of 1920 than for education during the entire history of the country.

This remarkable fact is brought out in a statement issued today by Philander P. Claxton, United States Commissioner of Education.

Pointing out that during 1920 luxury taxes were paid on expenditures totaling $22,000,000,000, as recently announced by the Department of Internal Revenue, Dr. Claxton has assembled figures which show that during the past fifty years only $14,552,796,000 was expended on all institutions of learning. For the years preceding 1870 he estimates the total expenditures at $2,052,000,000, making a grand total of $16,645,000,000.

The figures include expenditures for building and equipment, repairs, heating, lighting and other incidentals, as well as teachers' salaries.

POSTPONE DEAN CASE HEARING TO MAR. 25

Trial of Slander Suit May Not Be Reached by the Court Until May Term

East Jaffrey, N. H., March 18.—At the request of counsel for the plaintiff, the hearing slated for today to take depositions in the $10,000 slander suit brought by Judge Charles L. Rich against Selectman Edward C. Boynton as a result of agitation over the Dean murder case, was postponed until Friday, March 25.

The trial of the suit may not be reached until the May term, though the plan is to reach it at the April term if possible.

Attorney-General Oscar L. Young's latest published statement has stirred comment here. It did not make a popular impression, judging from the discussion. Attorney-General Young declared that he and County Solicitor Roy M. Pickard had done all in their power to solve the murder of Dr. William Kendrick Dean and to bring the murderers to justice. Young added that he was ready to step aside temporarily and permit a special prosecutor to reopen the case, but protested that a grand jury had already investigated the mystery.

The Selectmen and taxpayers generally reply that the recent town election showed that the people of Jaffrey do not share Young's view and that their action at the polls was a public protest against the manner in which the Dean case had been handled by the local authorities. Sentiment for a reopening of the case appears to have been sharpened rather than diminished by the attorney general's latest explanation.

MOTHER OF NINE STRANGLED BY ROBBERS

Noose About Brooklyn Woman's Head Slips Down and Choked Her to Death

New York, March 18.—Bound and gagged by four highwaymen, the noose about Mrs. Henrietta Defelicio's head slipped down around her throat and choked her to death in her Brooklyn home. She was the mother of nine children. The robbers escaped with $2,500 in money and jewelry.

Mrs. Rosa Menditto, a nurse, was also bound and gagged but managed to loosen the towel about her head and mouth. She staggered to the window of the house and called for help. Mrs. Defelicio was dead when the police arrived.

Wounded by Revolver

The accidental discharge of an old revolver found in a drawer in the office of Thomas Daly, Fulton street, wounded Michael Dumelis, twenty-four years old, of No. 71 Milford street, in the foot, and he was sent to the hospital for treatment.

Crocodile And Mule Battle to Death

Washington, March 18. — A battle to the death between a government mule and a crocodile, in which the latter triumphed, was reported to the War Department from the Panama Canal Zone today.

The mule was being used by a contractor working on the banks of the Chagres River. It became necessary for the animal to ford the stream, when half way across it was attacked by the crocodile.

Several times the mule kicked off the attacks of the crocodile, but was finally drawn under the surface. The carcass was found later. One foreleg and shoulder had been completely chawed away by the iron jaws of the assailant.

IRELAND FIRED WORLD IDEALS—McSWEENEY

The second installment of the first of a series of vigorous articles on the various aspects of the Irish cause is published by the Boston American today. It is written by Edward F. McSweeney, former member of the advisory committee of the Irish Victory Fund and national officer of the Friends of Irish Freedom.

By EDWARD F. McSWEENEY.
(Second Installment.)

The outstanding fact for our consideration is that Emmet, Wolfe Tone, Lord Edward Fitzgerald, Michael Dwyer and their associates were, by their insistence on the absolute separation of Ireland from the imperial connection, able to fire the imagination of the world, and especially of the people of their own blood. They realized then, as Washington did after the die was cast by the Declaration of Independence, that liberty under British rule was an impossible dream.

O'Connell, Butt, Grattan, Parnell, Redmond—while they undoubtedly believed absolute separation was the ideal eventually to be fought for, to re-establish the historic Irish nation outside the British Empire, were satisfied to accept a working constitution inside the empire, a resident Parliament, opportunity to solve national difficulties, develop national resources and restore the national genius and culture.

Tone and Emmet believed, as did Washington and Sam Adams before them, that it was better to be crushed by monarchical absolutism than temporarily to prosper by accepting its rule. They believed, as Mitchel and Lalor and MacSwiney believed in a later day, that when half measures take the place of the simple purpose the issue is confused. There can be no such thing as qualified independence for a nation, which, as Lincoln said, cannot exist while its people are to any degree living under conditions of servitude.

It is the crowning glory of the Irish people that they stand out from all the races in the world in their deathless capacity to fight for liberty, generation after generation. They have resisted without ceasing, under conditions of cruelty and oppression not paralleled in elapsed time and bitterness, in the history of any other race. When the torch of liberty grew dim in the rest of the world, the Irish people, fanning it into new life, held it aloft for the guidance and hope of mankind.

INTELLECTUALS IN U. S. A REAL MENACE.

We are told that the Irish in America are too much interested in the Irish cause. It is absolutely necessary that this continue to be so, for America's sake. It may be, and probably is, true that this will involve the American Irish racial group in material loss, but thirty generations of suffering have taught us that material considerations must give place to spiritual, and if "progress" is to be paralyzed, as Senator Lodge fears, it can only be when the fires of freedom are extinguished from the human heart.

The menace to liberty is not from the working class, but from our so-called intellectual classes. In the last generation there were many leaders of the type of Senator Hoar, whose voice was always ready to raise itself in behalf of a worthy cause. Today Senator Lodge seems to stand almost alone as the spokesman of the spirit of liberty.

Look over the long list of college presidents who are preaching that "Americanization to be complete must be synonymous with 'Anglicization.'" They stigmatize as "hyphenates" millions of our population whose only offence is that they love liberty, who have never, as individuals or as racial groups, been lacking in the slightest measure in their loyalty and devotion to these United States. At the same time these self-appointed critics are themselves super-hyphenates, who have abandoned their priceless birthright inherited from the Fathers of the country, for the contemptible patronage of a Northcliff and a Beaverbrook—who accept the leadership of Crewe House as more binding than that of our national Capitol.

"WORSHIP AT ALTAR OF MATERIALISM"

Our so-called intellectual classes in the United States today are patriotically sterile. They worship at the altar of materialism and are devotees of caste. They are busy setting barriers between neighbors, reviving race and religious distinctions that have been abandoned long since as unworthy and unfruitful, and opposed to the spirit of real brotherhood. One of their literary spokesmen, John Corbin, has recently gone so far as to seriously advance the claim in a recent number of the North American Review that "equality" as preached by the Declaration of Independence is abominable, because if men are held to be "equal," the rich, the better educated and the more favored by circumstance and position will be denied the "right" to rule the masses without other restraint than their own desire. This, of course, is to set up and restore in this free nation the discarded doctrine of "divine right."

It is the growth of this spirit in our modern life, existing indeed before the war, but increased largely because of it, that justified the spirit of pessimism in Senator Lodge's address and his apprehension that progress in this civilization has reached its height, if indeed it has not already begun to decline. The danger, however, stands some chance of being averted while the distinguished senior Senator from Massachusetts and those men associated with him of the type of Borah, from the far West, and Walsh, Brandegee and Moses from New England, remain to sound the warning.

It may be true, as charged, that the Irish race are hero-worshippers, but respect for the heroes of history is as necessary in the fight for freedom as food is for life. The recent dangerous attack on liberty in the United States was the attempt being made before the war by the German and British governments, and since 1917, mainly by the British government (although every government with an axe to grind in the United States is participating to some extent), to control American opinion by the arts of international propaganda. England's effort is primarily aimed at disparaging the memory of the heroes whom our school children should be taught to worship—an attempt is being made to turn them over to the control of the British and American Historical Societies, working through the Carnegie Institute, under the leadership of Professors Andrew Cunningham McLaughlin of Chicago and Hart of Harvard, with such assistants as Owen Wister, George Haven Putnam, Presidents Butler of Columbia, Faunce of Brown, Angell of Yale, and a small army of super-hyphenated aspirants for British favor. Under such direction there will soon be nothing left that is worth while for our children to be proud of. Naturally, they are already wondering that so much fuss has been made since the American Revolution over such an insignificant and unduly-advertised event.

The growth of the United States has been profoundly influenced by the inspiration of all the world's heroes.

We love them all, because they have, every one, done their part to keep the divine spark of liberty alive and to save it for the world; but even above these, we put the memory of George Washington—the richest man of his time—if he did not love liberty he might have become a king.

If Washington were alive he would know the answer to make to the defence being made by England of the barbarism of the "reprisal" policy now going on in Ireland. He knew numerous instances of similar "reprisals" by the crown forces against himself during the Revolutionary War.

(First installment of an article by Judge Cohalan will be published tomorrow.)

GERTIE'S LOST GARTER NEARLY HALTED PLAY

Frenzied Hunt Behind Curtain When Hazel Dawn Missed Vital "Character"

Gertie lost her garter.

This would appear to be a private matter except that Gertie is the heroine of the play at the Plymouth Theatre, and the situation was so garter no play.

"Hont Solt qui mal y pense"

Hazel Dawn, the heroine of the drama, discovered that she didn't have the garter about five minutes before she was supposed to go on and display it last night. The garter is lost and recovered and lost again ad through Al. Woods' cultural entertainment. But this loss was real.

MAD HUNT BEGINS.

"Where's my garter?" cried Gertie in a frenzied sotto voce from her post on top of a stairing which from the front looks like the second story chamber of an attractive bungalow.

Everybody who wasn't on at the time began a mad search for it. Walter Jones looked through all his pockets and discovered several glass receptacles but no garter. There was less than two minutes before Miss Gertie gave the exposition.

When everone was in disgair, Bert Harrison, the producer, suddenly observed a stage hand who was wearing sussie garters.

"Unnie one of those," demanded, grasping the article

"What's going to keep up me stocks?" demanded the stage hand indignantly

"The union rules" replied the stage manager, as he triumphantly proffered the garter to Gertie.

UNDERSTUDY IN ORDER.

"That's no good," said Miss Dawn. "There has to be a lot of jewels on it."

"Who's got some jewels?" demanded the stage manager, grasping at pearl necklaces, rings and other ornaments worn by other women members of the cast.

"Needs and I tread," he demanded. In a second he had sewed on a lot of jewels, including an honest to goodness platinum pendant which Alice Rolland happened to be wearing.

Gertie made her entrance wearing a garter, just as time but the rest of the evening Miss Rolland spent her time watching earnestly the progress of her pendant from hand to hand, hoping against hope that it would come home all O. K.

It did.

In the future there will be a regular understudy for Gertie's Garter at the Plymouth.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well known authority, who wants us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but being a weak from the overwork, they get sluggish, the elimination slackens and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have nagging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

The movies as a career for girls— is it dangerous?

WHAT of the perils and temptations supposed to be inevitable to life in the movies? Can a girl get ahead and still retain her innocence and refinement?

Does it offer the glittering opportunities that we are led to believe? Are the salaries really so fabulous?

How does one go about it to get a start? What part does pull play?

These are questions which thousands of ambitious girls and thousands of anxious mothers have asked Pictorial Review to answer.

In Pictorial Review for April, Benjamin B. Hampton, one of the pioneers of the moving-picture industry, gives detailed information on all these points.

Would you like to learn how to get into the movies? Then read

"Do you want to get into the movies?"
by Benjamin B. Hampton, in Pictorial Review for April

Nearly everyone has had these dreams and wondered what they meant. Find out all about your dreams by reading

"Your dreams and your soul"

FRENCH DEMAND MARCH "ON TO BERLIN"

Premier Briand Raises Indemnity to $150,000,000,000, or Occupation

Instead of the $50,000,000,000 fixed by the Paris agreement Germany will be forced to pay $100,000,000,000 under the threat of further occupation, even if the Allies have to march to Berlin.

This astounding decision was announced to the world by Premier Briand in a speech in Parliament Responding to a question by Deputy Pergent a literal enemy of the Premier Briand said:

"The Paris agreement is a thing of the past. It no longer governs the actions of the Allies who have reverted to the pure and simple terms of the Versailles treaty.

Charged with stealing $10,000 from Adalian Brothers, rug dealers at No. 440 Boylston street, Edward Hicknell, 28 years old, and Clarence E. Knapp, 29 years old, both of Belmont street, Wollaston, were arrested by the Back Bay police, and arraigned in the Superior Court. Their cases were continued a week (illegible).

Patrolman McNabb, who arrested them, says they are the heads of the American Trade Information Bureau offices on Summer street. Hicknell is said to have been connected with the Red Cross in the war. He traveled through Syria and on his return talked with Harry Adalian of the rug firm. In this conversation he is alleged to have said he was earning as a secret agent for an American agency and to have mentioned a $1,000 reward in the Adalian mountains. It is claimed that last January Adalian paid $10,000 to Hicknell as a ransom for the captive brothers and that Hicknell gained his confidence by telling Adalian he was going to Russia. Adalian called in the police, it is said, and a search of the two men were charged with conspiracy to extort.

Lawrence, March 18—Otis B. Angell, an inventor of Jamaica Plain, has brought suit in Essex County Superior Civil court here against the Manuel Ring Manufacturing company of Haverhill in an action of contract for $2,000. H. E. Miller of Boston represents the plaintiff, who claims that he had an agreement with the defendant company whereby he was to have been paid $25 a week for a year, which after which his pay was to have been raised to $30 a week. LINCOLN EXHIBIT IS ATTRACTING BUYERS

The Lincoln exhibit at the Salon in the Statler Hotel is attracting many interested buyers. The leaders of the car are so well known in the automobile world that the public has only been waiting to see the model instead of read it, and it has not been disappointed.

Henry M. Leland, General Sales Manager of the Lincoln Motor Company of Detroit, was at the booth the first two days, and during the week Mr. and Mrs. Leland, New York, H. M. Addison, Chicago, Robert McCurdy, Pittsburgh, J. W. Sweeten, Philadelphia, and James H. Fitzgerald, Cleveland, also were present.

Better Clothes for Less Money

When you look over the Easter showings this spring, you'll find a bigger difference than usual between various stores, depending upon the extent to which they have liquidated and adjusted themselves to the new "normalcy."

In this Live Store you'll find new stocks throughout — new and more attractive styles — new and higher qualities—new and lower prices. You'll find better values in better clothes than any Easter season has presented for quite a number of years. We're 100 per cent down to the new normal basis.

There's no store in the country in a better position to serve the public today than we are — no store that will or can give you newer style, higher quality or better value. When you're ready to inspect the best values in Good Clothes in New England, we're ready to show them to you.

New Kuppenheimer Suits are priced $35 to $50

These choice garments display all the old-time Kuppenheimer characteristics—splendid fabrics, handsome patterns, superior tailoring, inimitable grace and unequalled values at our special prices which represent the smallest margin of profit on which this or any other store ever attempted to do business.

On suits from other good makers, our prices this Spring will range as low as $25 for suits made to our rigid specifications. You'll find them just as attractive in appearance, and just as good value, per dollar of the price, as those from The House of Kuppenheimer.

New Spring Top Coats are $25 to $50

RUCKMAN URGES STRONGER N.E. DEFENSES

Wants Biggest Fixed Guns and More Mobile Artillery Along the Coast

Providence, March 18.—Brigadier-General John W. Ruckman advocated immediate steps to strengthen the fortifications of the New England coast, in an address before the Chamber of Commerce here.

He urged that fixed guns of the largest calibre be installed on Montauk Point, Block Island, No Man's Land, Cape Ann, Cape Cod, Portsmouth, and Portland. Mobile artillery of the railroad and tractor type should supplement these, he said. He also recommended widening the Cape Cod canal and Hell Gate, declaring that if these suggestions were carried out a fleet of the navies in the world could not enforce an effective blockade against an American fleet in harbor.

Politics Only Issue in Debs Case, Says Hapgood

By NORMAN HAPGOOD,
Editorial Correspondent of Boston American.

Washington, March 18.—The statement given out at the White House does not change the situation in the Debs case. President Harding asked Mr. Daugherty to review the case some time ago. There is, in reality, nothing to review. The facts are admitted. The Supreme Court upheld the conviction unanimously. It is now a question not of law or of fact, but of political wisdom. It is a question of amnesty, of peace, of recognizing that keeping political prisoners in jail so long after the war ended is not helping anybody.

Norman Hapgood

President Harding has his chance to make a Lincolnesque move, and the prompter it is made the more effective it will be. Hectoring in the campaign drove him to say he saw no more reason for a general amnesty of political offenders than for a general amnesty of yeggmen. The Socialists felt pretty badly over that comparison. This is the opportunity to show a softer spirit. President Wilson hurt himself enormously in his handling of these cases.

Debs Doubts Wisdom of Early Activity

The controversy among the Socialists and the pacifists as to how they shall treat he present administration is gaining momentum. Lucy Robins, executive secretary of the Central Labor Bodies' Conference, and chairman of the committee on amnesty of the American federation of Labor, has held a conference with Henry Lang, late editor of the Jewish Daily Forwards, and with Abraham Tuvim, who is in charge of the demonstration being arranged to be held in Washington on April 13, the second anniversary of the imprisonment of Eugene Debs, and April 14, the fifty-sixth anniversary of the death of Abraham Lincoln.

It was the decision of this conference that the picketing of the White House, in any case, ought to be called off. The conference thereupon wired to Mr. Barnstetter, the national secretary of the Socialist party, who is in Chicago, urging that the demonstration be cancelled.

Eugene Debs himself doubts the wisdom of the drive at the present administration so early in its career, and Debs is the one of all the conscientious objectors now in jail who is suffering most from the excessive cruelty of punishment with which our Department of Justice, our judges and our juries attempted to suppress minority opinion during the war.

Harding and Daugherty Discuss Case

Among those who have wired to Barnstetter urging him to stop the demonstration is James O'Neal, one of the editors of the New York Call.

All these developments have happened within the last day or two. Meantime the case has been gone over between the President and Mr. Daugherty, and this question of pickling was one of the aspects they discussed. Another was the state of Debs' health, which is precarious.

The administration is affected by various considerations. In the first place there is President Harding's desire to get rid of as much war bitterness as possible. Then there is the desire not to have the responsibility for Debs dying in jail. On the other hand, there is in the Cabinet and among the President's advisers generally an element that is moved by a strong feeling against Socialists and pacifists generally. This element is made really angry at the idea of the conscientious objectors coming out of jail. Even if the war has been over for two years and a quarter, some of those interested would like to keep up the war spirit as long as possible.

Here, by the way, is an aspect of the fight over George Harvey that is being kept under cover. Indeed the two principal aspects of that case are being soft pedalled. The fact that he has always been a Democrat is given plenty of publicity, because it is not a ticklish subject to handle. The things that are ticklish are two in number. The lesser in importance is personal, and though it is a thing naturally displeasing to Mr. Hughes it is not of great international importance.

Harvey's Rabid Views on Germany Objectionable

The other objection has to do with international conciliation. The bitterness with which Colonel Harvey has proclaimed that Germany ought to be an outlaw forever, and that she should be squeezed dry with no sympathy and no calculation of anything in the future in the spirit in which a mad dog is treated, is the really important aspect of the protests. His attitude toward Russia and toward radicals at home is attracting less attention.

Of course, as ambassador to Great Britain, he would have nothing to do with home affairs, but would have a great deal to do indirectly with plans for handling the German indemnity and with possible future movements looking toward resumption of trade between this country and Russia.

Thus the Debs case does not stand alone. It offers to the administration a delicate question in the expression of its attitude toward the war spirit in general. It is perhaps not important in comparison with our views on Germany and Russia, but it is inseparably connected with them.

If the administration begins with a gesture that reminds people of Lincoln, by a big attitude toward the million Americans who voted for Eugene Debs and the million or more others who did not vote for him but feel very strongly it will be creating a psychology that will make it easier to approach the German question with reason. And also, the Russian question, the two greatest questions in the world, because they are the questions on which reconstruction hinges.

USINESS IS HOWING BIG IMPROVEMENT

turn to Normal Conditions Slow, but Unemployment Decreases Daily

Washington, March 18.—Business is slowly returning to normalcy, according to reports to the Department of Labor and the Federal Reserve Board.

Unhurry conditions during the month of February were improved, sorts do not indicate any great impus to business, but rather a gradu and cautious movement towards ttterment.

Unemployment continues but it is gradually being reduced.

The housing shortage has been relieved in some sections particularly i New England through unemployment.

Reports to the United States employment service department of labor, om 1,422 firms located in 45 principal industrial centres of the United Sates, showed a net decrease of 18.5 employes, or one per cent. during February.

The decrease in employment was less than 10 per cent in New Haven, Worcester, Mass., and Springfield, Mass.

An increase in employment during February of 14.5 was shown in Bridgeport, Ct., and less than 10 per cent. in Manchester, N. H., Brockton, Mass., Lawrence, Mass., New Bedford, Fall River, Mass., Providence, Waterbury, Ct., and Boston.

Comparing prices in February with those of a year ago, it is shown that food has declined over 35 per cent., clothes and clothing over 46 per cent. and farm products over 45 per cent. All commodities, taken in the aggregate, were almost 33 per cent. cheaper than in the corresponding month of last year.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

Grandma kept her locks dark, glossy and youthful with a simple mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the smoky mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time, by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur compound is that besides restoring darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful relief for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Advertisement.

40 MORE PICTURES COMING IN MOVIE TITLE TEST

Participants in the $5,000 Movie Play Title Test will observe that the "Test Pictures have been moved from the outer to the inner edge of the Picture Page. The removal is "by request," fully a score of readers reporting that, too frequently, the Boston American had come to them with the Test Picture torn.

Today's Picture is No. 20, which means that our enjoyable Title Test is one-third completed. There are forty pictures to come, and there still remains every opportunity to step in and earn even the $1,000 award.

HOW to begin, with the Test so far advanced, and start on even terms with every other participant, will be told in the Boston Sunday Advertiser, Order it today. The Sunday Advertiser will NOT contain Back Pictures.' It WILL explain where to find them.

The Movie Play Title Test consists of 60 pictures, each of which will be printed WITHOUT A TITLE. They appear on week-days in the Boston American, and on Sundays in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Participants in the Test are required to WRITE THE MISSING TITLES. At the end of the Test the following awards will be paid—in cash—to those who have sent in the largest percentages of correct titles to the 60 pictures:

ONE FIRST AWARD	$1,000
ONE SECOND AWARD	750
ONE THIRD AWARD	500
ONE FOURTH AWARD	400
ONE FIFTH AWARD	300
ONE SIXTH AWARD	200
ONE SEVENTH AWARD	150
ONE EIGHTH AWARD	100
ONE NINTH AWARD	50
100 AWARDS OF $10 EACH	1,000
110 AWARDS OF $5 EACH	550
TOTAL	$5,000

The rest is exactly as represented. Every day a List of Titles is printed and every day the title of the Test Picture printed that day will be found in the List of Titles. At the present writing he Test really is as easy as 'A, B, C.' Naturally it will grow a little more difficult as we go along. You have observed the awards, $1,000, $ .0, $500, $400, $300, $200, $150, $100, and so on. They look good, and the Test will be easy, but those who capture the largest of them will earn them by the exercise of intelligence. The requirements for THIS Test are a quick wit, a knowledge of words and a willingness to work.

The Title Test Editor continues to receive letters from participants in the Movie PLAYER IDENTITY Test. He learns by inquiry that it will be at least two weeks more before the checkers are ready to begin opening about two weeks from Sunday, therefore, we shall expect to be able to announce the date on which the List of Awards will be published. Try to be patient until that time. The checkers remember, had approximately 4,000,000 separate pictures to examine. The report which will be presented to you will be complete in every detail.

In the Title Test, as in the Player Test, it is highly important that you keep in touch with developments from day to day. Observe the Rule with Numbers for the largest percentage of titles for the 60 pictures. See that your list is complete.

The best way to do this, as has been said so many times before, is to place a standing order for the two papers, Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, with your regular newsdealer. He should be glad to serve you. If he slips, a letter to the Manager of Circulation, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, will bring the adequate corrective. Order your Boston Sunday Advertiser today, for Sunday after Sunday too Advertiser is all sold out everywhere in New England.

A few answers to correspondents and we are done for the day.

Helen Hunt, Taunton. It might be a good plan to examine the paper before you take it away. I wish you had given me your address.

A Jay Bee Reader.—The post-office folks ought to know. I think you were right. Send me your name and address and I'll investigate for you.

T. F. W. G., Worcester.—You are right. It may be one word or more. No objection to the pencil.

P. J. (old Dorchester.)—No; go right ahead as if there were not one in the world. Forget about them.

Peggy R., Providence—I am truly sorry about that other letter. Never saw it. The book arrangement is splendid. I agree with you about the paper. Use your pencil.

M. E. C., Worcester.—Yes I find it there, in the first column. The second column was added.

Sweet Sixteen, Chelsea—What YOU need is a spanking.

J. Jamaican—No, one answer to each picture, sixty titles from one person.

R. L. S., East Providence, R. I.—The sixth paragraph of the Rules answers your question.

A Movie Fan—It is not essential that you include the top-piece over the picture. The number is on the picture. Never mind the top-piece.

Joel Pencil (long ester, I like it)—Chairman of Ballots, Mr.—If you purchased a copy of the Extra Special sold on Monday you got No. 1. That edition will be a day record until well along at the end of the Test, when it will carry two big pictures on a single day. Give me your address and I will gladly arrange to have you come in and look us over. Thank you.

A. H. S., Dorchester.—Yes, a mighty fine day. I think I've said a lot about it. I should say about the Sunday after Easter, but it may be a week or two longer. Give me your address and I will gladly arrange to have you come in and look us over. Thank you.

Lift Out Your Corns
ICE-MINT
THE NEW DISCOVERY ENDS ALL
Foot Troubles

This new discovery, made from a Japanese product, is certainly a wonder the way it stops corn pain at once. Just a pair of pads on the sore toe and it takes the soreness right out. Then the corn or callous dries up and lifts off.

Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes all get the same kind treatment—one drop of pain ends all pain. Doesn't even irritate the surrounding skin.

You will never have to cut a corn again and run the risk of blood poison, acidity or infection. Ice-Mint is the only way. Don't suffer another minute. Get a bottle of Ice-Mint from any druggist or department store and give your feet a treat. Then you will know what real foot comfort is.

It means such a delightful, soothing, cooling feeling to the feet that you will gasp with relief.

Ice-Mint is the real Japanese secret for foot health little Eskimos and Esquimaux all know—it keeps them sweet and happy. If the Eskimos have found its wonders, why wear tight shoes.

Just step in any drug store for a little Ice-Mint and give your feet a treat. Instant relief, the feet feel like new, corns little and there is nothing better.

GRANT AND MITCHELL SET LINES TO TRAP REGULAR INFIELDER

Big League Player Sought to Fill Gap Made in Ranks of Braves by Release of Maranville

By NICK FLATLEY.

Galveston, Texas, March 18.—Trade signals are flying from the Brave baseball camp here. Manager Mitchell wants one more experienced big league infielder, and is willing to put a few of his fly chasers on the market to get the same.

The manager figures that one more classy inner guardian will give him a team fitted to fight up around the [illegible] of the National League. He [illegible] that to President Grant as soon [illegible] the latter dressed in, and immediately the wires were burdened with bids and offers to all the big league clubs.

Neither the press nor the skipper in any too optimistic about the result [illegible] the Western Union assortment, but chances is, "No harm in trying." Any manager who figures that he needs only one more outfielder is in such a bad fix, any way you look at it.

President Grant is Trying All the Time

A fairly good team at the wicket will mean large profits and the consequent opportunity to build up a real pennant contender. Whereas, George Washington remarks, "Up in there trying all the time," and a good trade isn't too much to expect shortly. George W. means what he states a good trade if he wasn't pestered or sold off other Braves we could mention.

The search for the infielder doesn't mean that Mitch is dissatisfied with the material he has at hand, or certain that Barbare will not fill in the breach at short. Far from it. The late Pirate has made a mighty large dent in the Brave baseball map already, and candidates for his job will have to show a lot of class to blast him off the regular lineup. But there are no seasoned subs in the offing, and at least one is a necessity. The grist of minor leaguers in training here has been satisfactory enough but the greatest of the lower class performers cannot step right in and deliver in the real campaigning.

Lacy Makes Big Hit With Three Hits

Young Lacy was more or less incandescent in the initial practice game, carving out three screaming base knocks and fielding very nifty at second and third. He did it against fine pitching, too, for the hurlers surely had something on the ball all through the pasting, which went the regular nine innings, and was won by the varsity, 4 to 0.

Baseball is my favorite sport. America's greatest national outdoor sports appeals to me more than all other sports which afford pleasure as well as recreation to a large sport aggregation in this country.

While attending Boston College I played on my class team, the mental and physical benefits derived from the games in which I played being greatly appreciated by me.

I have attended all the World's Series played in Boston and look forward to witnessing at least a few more of these events contested in this great baseball city which has turned out several 100 per cent baseball teams.

MITCHELL

IT WAS just nineteen years ago when Mitchell began building automobiles, though generations have associated the name Mitchell with good vehicles since 1834.

Mitchell continues to justify every confidence, not alone through attractive designs and complete appointments, but by length of service. This is undeniable proof of accomplishment—

—an evidence of stability, the real quality by which owners measure their approval year after year—

—and Mitchell automobiles remain pre-eminent in the moderate price field.

Mr. Packard Owner!

WE'VE always been mighty proud of that twin-six engine of ours—we Packard boosters. And I, personally, haven't been especially bashful and retiring in telling people about its performances.

Which makes my tale sadder!

My cousin Tom from Worcester came to town last Wednesday in his 1917 Runwell Six and we drove our respective families out to Brookline to call Sunday afternoon.

Coming along to Corey Hill Tom suggested a race up the hill. I took him on with a poor attempt to hide a smile. But I had no smile to hide when we reached the top. Tom's old Runwell made it about fifty yards sooner than my comparatively new Packard.

When we reached our destination Tom told me all about it. "The simplest thing in the world," he said, "just an eight-ounce can of FAM-O poured into my gas tank before I left home. It cleared away the accumulated carbon on my way down and put new life into my engine. And now I'm getting almost 30 per cent. more mileage from my gas."

I thought of the money I had spent—at my service station—having carbon removed, and knew that had been my trouble in the race up Corey Hill.

Need I say that a few days later I raced Tom again up the hill. And I almost lost sight of him he was so far in the rear. FAM-O did it? Surest thing you know! And anyhow you and I know that you can't beat a Packard motor when it's running true to form.

ORGANIZED BALL TO DEAL WITH PLAYERS

Action of Cook County Court in White Sox Cases Provided for, Says Heydler

Pinehurst, N. C., March 18.—John Heydler, president of the National League, said that organized baseball was prepared to deal with the former members of the Chicago American League baseball team who have been cleared of the Cook County Court had dismissed the cases against them. The players were charged with having fixed the 1919 World's Series games.

"We foresaw just such a decision the Court and prepared for it in the Judge K. M. Landis was appointed baseball commissioner," said Mr. Heydler. "There has always been a feeling among legal men as to the legality of the organization which places Judge Landis can be depended upon to deal with such situation in the proper manner."

Heydler said that he stood by his determination that the Chicago players would never appear in baseball again. Again he said "I have not heard of any of the players taking the initiative in a campaign to win reinstatement."

terrific drubbing in our fifteen-round title battle in Madison Square Garden. Of course, it was probably unkind for me to defeat Mike on St. Patrick's Day, but there is no place for sentiment in the ring.

I punched O'Dowd into an almost helpless condition in the twelfth round. He was ready to quit after I crashed a heavy left hand smash to his body. In a few seconds after leaving the corner, the referee made a show of flag to the referee after I refused him, although I walked to the task.

What did a great deal more than is the fact that I was not compelled to go the limit. I took according to plan. I was with my right until I felt sure he was fooled from [illegible] I would lay waste under the [illegible]. When I felt O'Dowd [illegible] I knew where [illegible] or cut it. [illegible] walked [illegible] left hand [illegible]

O'Dowd waved his [illegible] left-hand sock to the body. He had a heavy punch for [illegible] and he apparently was not in condition to take blows around the midsection.

Great Fighter Once, but Ring Star Has Set

Even [illegible] could not help but feel [illegible] for him. He was a great [illegible] his day but his ring star has set. I beat [illegible] fairly and squarely on [illegible] he would not admit I was the master and went around [illegible] claiming he had been [illegible] I proved the truth [illegible] Harry Mc[illegible] Jess Willard [illegible] also did [illegible].

O'Dowd [illegible] a sportsman and a [illegible] walked in before the [illegible] he refused to shake hands with [illegible] I overlooked this and when I was awarded the decision after five [illegible] of grueling battling [illegible] I did was rush [illegible] by the [illegible] upon [illegible]

Mike apparently still believes he is the greatest [illegible] that ever lived. As he passed [illegible] way through the crowd on his way to the dressing room he kept saying, "I cleaned him. I cleaned him."

I sympathize with the fallen ring idol, but for his own future prosperity would be glad to see him retire from the ring. He said [illegible] fight in the garden that [illegible] be his last bout if he were defeated. I hope he keeps his promise.

Of course, I am tickled over my great victory. I have since I first won over O'Dowd there have been persons who have referred to me as a "lucky champion." They refused to admit I won the title on my merits. Therefore you can imagine how elated I was when I trounced O'Dowd before his own crowd with all the conditions of the battle being in his favor.

I fought a careful, cold-blooded battle. I did not enter the ring with a view to knocking O'Dowd out. I was satisfied to win on points.

Right Jab Kept O'Dowd Away

O'Dowd surprised me by his style of fighting in the early part of the battle. I had expected him to come rushing from his corner like the proverbial lion. Instead he moved forward cautiously, trying to find an opening for his celebrated right hand punch. I kept him off balance most of the time by jabbing him with my left. When an opening presented itself I would crash my left to my opponent's body or head. I made a specialty of body smashes as an old timer like Mike can't take them in the body.

My two big rounds were the ninth and twelfth. In both of these sessions I had O'Dowd reeling around the ring drunk from punches. He wobbled several times and possibly I could have finished him in either round if I had cared to let drive with an avalanche of blows.

I was in here to fight fifteen rounds, however, and didn't try to make a spectacular ending of the bout.

O'Dowd's own supporters turned against him in the twelfth round. I had weakened him by steady body punishment. In the middle of the twelfth session I shot a terrific left-hand wallop to the pit of Mike's stomach. The challenger dropped his hands and cried foul.

Sidelights of the Big Title Battle

By GILL.

New York, March 18—Johnny Wilson is a real champion. The big town voted unanimously today.

"He's the goods, no cheese champion about him," was the verdict of the fans who jammed and crammed the Madison Square Garden.

Vincent "Pepper" Martin of Boston made his first and last appearance in the Garden. He won his bout but oh, what a boxing burlesque it was.

The opener brought some baldheaded veteran named George Dixon into the limelight. Some wise ringsider remarked confidentially to his pally that George was the famous old Dixon of former days.

Had a very accommodating usher in our section. Kept a crowd right between us and the ringside during the Martin-Young Ernst bout. Only had to watch a little of it.

The final round of the Germano-Baird fight was one great battle. It would be a treat for the fans at home. One real slam bang affair and all they want over here is a little action.

The double system of whistles and gongs at the end of the rounds had Wilson up in the air for the first two rounds, but O'Dowd was soaring all the time.

It was hard to sit there and watch O'Dowd actually trying to quit. It must have been tough going on the old battler.

I guess Hector McInnis was all wrong when he declared Wilson winner over O'Dowd in their first battle.

Some entertaining fan gave a few harmonica selections between bouts and he played a few while Martin and Ernst were waltzing around.

Nearly all the prominent sport men were in attendance. The Morning Glories were there 110 per cent.

Some of those wearing Johnny Wilson-Charlestown's Pride buttons were:

WILSON'S STEADINESS OVERCOMES MIKE O'DOWD'S RUSHING

Challenger Attempts to Quit in Ninth Round and Again Shows White Feather in Twelfth

By JACK CONWAY

New York, March 18.—Johnny Wilson crushed Mike O'Dowd's wonderful fighting spirit in their fifteen-round battle at Madison Square Garden. The once unconquerable St. Paul Sing warrior received the most decisive defeat of his career.

His left eye closed and blood flowing from a wound beneath it, his body covered with huge red spots as a result of terrific battering received from his assailant, his features marred and badly swollen, O'Dowd presented a pitiful appearance as he pushed his way to the dressing room through the crowd at the end of the contest.

O'Dowd was alone in that great building that contained 15,000 persons. Those curious individuals tried to get close to Mike to get a glimpse of his wounds and to size up his general appearance, but there were not real supporters in the audience of 15,000, who only a short hour before had greeted the challenger like a crusader returning from a great victory. Even Paddy Mullins faithful manager, was not with his fallen idol as he later hastened to the dressing room. As for the fans, it was the old, old story of the world loving a winner. O'Dowd was beaten. Wilson is accepted as the middle-weight king in New York.

Wilson gave O'Dowd the most decisive defeat this great fighter has ever received. O'Dowd won only one round—the fourteenth. He took the honors in this chapter because Wilson let up. Johnny had the battle won and was content to "lob-em over" much like a pitcher who has a ten-run lead in the last inning.

Wilson Fought With Care All the Way

It wasn't a spectacular battle as Wilson fought carefully at all times, while O'Dowd couldn't get within scoring distance. The champion, however, was working hard every minute he was in the ring. He was fighting according to plan and had the pleasure of seeing his campaign crowned with success.

Wilson made O'Dowd cry baby under the power of his deadly body smashes. In the ninth round and again in the twelfth O'Dowd wanted to quit. In the twelfth session he went in so far as to drop his hand and double up. The referee, however, wouldn't tolerate O'Dowd's claims and ordered the men to fight on. Wilson then staggered his rival with more left-hand socks to the body.

Despite the fact Wilson had eleven rounds, three being even and one ending in favor of O'Dowd, the judges disagreed. Tommy Shortell gave the award to Wilson, while Jack Roulette voted for O'Dowd. Referee Johnny McAvoy then cast the deciding ballot.

The bout was witnessed by a capacity crowd. The 15,000 persons who jammed Madison Square Garden paid more than $100,000 to see the contest.

Wilson kept jabbing and hooking away with his right hand throughout the battle. The result was that he opened the old wound under O'Dowd's left eye in the thirteenth round. The claret flowed freely from the wound and greatly interfered with Mike's work during the closing rounds of the engagement.

Wilson's victory, however, was due to his heavy left-hand body punches. O'Dowd had a roll of fat around his waist line when he entered the ring. Mike's face was drawn, while he didn't carry any extra weight around the upper part of his body. He apparently trained hard for the match but was unable to get off all the weight he had gathered from easy living.

O'Dowd didn't fight his usual rushing, slugging battle. He was apparently afraid lest his powers of endurance break down before the mid-night. He also showed great respect for Wilson's left as he usually backed away when the Boston favorite let drive with it.

As for generalship, Wilson completely outclassed his opponent. Johnny never used up a bit of energy unnecessarily. He fought like a man there to battle from each round and he therefore avoided every possible unnecessary move.

Battle Very Poor for Title Affair

By DAMON RUNYON.

New York, March 18.—One judge, Jack Roiette, said Mike O'Dowd of St. Paul, had won back the middleweight championship at Madison Square Garden.

The other judge, Tommy Shortell, said Johnny Wilson, the Boston battler, had won it.

And Referee Johnny McAvoy said it was a draw.

Which is a fair sample of the confusion that reigned in the ringside section of the Garden last night when Wilson and O'Dowd battled for fifteen rounds in the first championship fight to be staged in the metropolis in many years.

Wilson was given the decision by the newspaper men at the ringside, but the crowd was not satisfied with the verdict. The majority of the fans thought O'Dowd had won.

Wilson was the aggressor throughout the fight, but he was content to let O'Dowd do the leading. Mike rushed in and swung his left and right to the head and body, but Wilson blocked most of the blows with his arms and shoulders.

Wilson's left jab was working to perfection, and he had O'Dowd's left eye closed and bleeding in the thirteenth round. Wilson's left hand was also responsible for a cut over O'Dowd's right eye.

Wilson's right hand was not used to any great extent, as he was content to keep it in position to block O'Dowd's left hook.

Wilson's left jab was the most effective blow in the fight. He shot it out straight from the shoulder, and it landed on O'Dowd's face with a resounding smack.

Philip Winterdick, twenty-eight and carefree, the son of rich, blue-blooded parents, loves Kitty Arlington, fluffy and dimpled. She is of "good family," but in restricted circumstances. She is eager enough to marry Philip when he proposes. But his dream of happiness is short-lived, for his father tells him the whole family fortune has been jeopardized in a stock deal. Further, he tells Philip that he has arranged with Dennison, a rich neighbor of "no family," for financial aid under the condition that Philip marry Eva Dennison, to satisfy the older Dennison's ambition to get his daughter a social station. Philip tells Kitty and is rejected.

SHE made a movement to pass him, but he stopped her.

"You're not going to let you go like this," he said decidedly. "You've got to have this out with me. You accuse us of being snobs——"

Eva laughed mirthlessly.

"I never used the word—I never even thought it."

"It's the same thing," he protested impatiently. "You talk about your father having made his money out of trade. We, mine didn't make his at all—it's been made for him years ago and left handed on as I suppose some day it will be handed on to me, at least—to be shared by the moment he was forgotten the tragic thing that had happened only a few hours ago; then he straightened his shoulders.

"So you see it is an absurd argument to set on both sides. As a matter of fact your mother scores over mine as it always more tact to a man to make his money than to have it given to him. So please don't talk rubbish like that. As to mother—she was only annoyed about something this evening when I got home. I give you my word she was and I assure you that she will be delighted if you'll come and pay at our place tomorrow. I get rid of Foster in the morning and ring up Sadie Arkwright and we'll have a great four. What time will you come?"

Confidence in Voice

There was a sort of confidence in his voice that he took it for granted that she would not refuse, and it hurt her.

"I don't think I'll come," she said. "And don't be late. Goodnight—Goodnight—and—Miss Dennison!"

"Yes!"

They were some steps apart now and he looked at the old man in the moon and grants the wish," said Philip Winterdick.

There was a little silence.

"So do I," said Eva tremulously.

Mrs. Winterdick Calls

"Tennis again!" said Peter Dennison disgustedly. He had encountered his sister on the stairs the following afternoon, and he paused a step below her and looked her up and down with pretended disapproval.

"Who is coming today, then?"

Eva was intent on fastening the cuff of her white glove.

"Only Madge and Mr. Foster," she said airily.

"Only three of you!—you can't play three," he protested.

She raised her eyes for a moment and dropped them again quickly.

"There's Mr. Winterdick, too," she said.

"Winterdick!" A little gleam shot into the boy's eyes. "Oh, then, I suppose Miss Arlington will be here as well."

"Indeed she won't, then," said Eva sharply. "She doesn't play, and so I didn't ask her. . . . She hates games."

"She could sit under the trees and amuse me," Peter said. "I like looking at her—she's like a picture."

He seemed conscious all at once of his sister's silence; he twisted her sleeve.

"What's up, Bennie?"

"Nothing." She pulled away from him almost angrily. "You men are all the same," she said impatiently. "It's always a pretty face that attracts you—nothing else."

She passed him and went down into the hall.

Title Test Is Only Twenty Days Old; DON'T You Want $1,000? Picture No. 20

MEX FLIER MAKES A HIT—In fact he hit so hard that he nearly tore the coping off the National Palace at Mexico City. The plane was wrecked and the birdman seriously injured when the machine bored its way into the structure. Photo was taken just after he struck. (U. & U.)

CUPID VAMP—Here's a trio of champ vamps, but the cutest is little Grace Mill in the centre, who won the hearts of patrons at the Spring Fashion Show in the Hotel Astor, N. Y. The little dear made her entrance in the box, escorted by a cupid more dears. Now we know where the baby vamps come from. (Int.)

SWEET "SIN"—Mrs. Tood Robins, as the "Original Sin," nearly drove the big gathering wild at the Prismatic Costume Ball in New York. (Wide World.)

THE SMOKY KID—Typical London chimney sweep out soliciting work. He is indispensible in ol' Lunnen because of the soft coal used there. Everything is soft, including job. (Keystone.)

I SAY, 'ERE'S A NOVELTY FROM 'OME—This fashion plate is wearing an overcoat inside of which a full length umbrella may be worn without discomfort. (Keystone.)

ESPANOLA—Queen Eugenia of Spain and her little son, Prince Don Juan Carlos, are regular pals. They are shown resting after a stroll through the beautiful Alcazar Gardens in Madrid. This former Englishwoman is one of the most beautiful members of European royalty. She is noted for her home-loving qualities. (Wide World.)

A GOOD SKIN GAME—Owing to the high cost of feather shark skins are now being utilized to excellent advantage by shoe manufacturers. Pictures show fishermen catching the sharks, and the finished goods made into serviceable shoes. More power to the sharks. (K. & H.)

DON'T WEAKEN, SNOWFLAKE!—The polar bears at the Lincoln Park Zoo, Chicago, are mourning the fast appearing Spring weather, but take advantage of the cold days to frolic about their expansive den. They are shown here in a playful bout in the fast melting snow. (Int.)

MORE ROUGH STUFF—The British Military pursues its ruthless methods in trying to fight down liberty. This photograph shows a British officer and soldiers holding up a train to search for Sinn Feiners. All trains are searched by the Military at regular intervals along the route. It might also be said that this searching is none too gentle. (Keystone.)

Rules of the Movie Play Title Test

The Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser's new Movie Play Title Test is a test of skill and judgment open to all readers of the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, irrespective of age, living in any city or town in New England or Canada.

Two hundred and thirteen cash awards will be given by these two newspapers during the test, which will run for 20 days. A picture of current events in the 80 pictures to be published one each day consecutively in the Daily American and Sunday Advertiser.

All employes of the Boston American, the Boston Sunday Advertiser and their families are absolutely barred from participating in the awards.

The Test will consist of 80 pictures, representing the title of a Moving Picture Play, to be printed one each day in the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, the first picture appearing Monday, March 14.

Participation in any other contest which has been run, which is now running or which may be run by the Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser will not debar anyone from entering this test.

Every participant or any or all members of a family will be allowed to submit one set of pictures, but each must contain only ONE TITLE to each picture, and no participant shall be entitled to more than one award and not more than one award shall be given in any family.

Each and every title must be neatly written or printed on the coupon furnished by the Boston American or Boston Sunday Advertiser, or a pen or pencil copy thereof, and must have the name, residence, etc., of the participant on each title blank.

Do not send your titles in "list" form, i. e., do not write titles under one another on a piece of paper.

In case there are not complete sets of correct titles awards will be given to the persons submitting the largest correct solutions.

Ties will be settled by a skill contest.

In case of a tie, awards will be made on the basis of neatness, judgment and exact accuracy, but if the tie cannot be decided in that way the tied participants will receive similar awards.

Under no circumstances should participants send in their titles before the end of the Test, as any sent in before the last picture is printed will not be considered. KEEP your titles from day to day and at the end of the Test arrange them in numerical order and then send them in all together at one time.

Prizes will be awarded in keeping the awards. The first three sent in after the Test closes will stand as matches the last submitted.

All titles must be delivered to the Boston American Movie Play Title Headquarters at No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., either by mail or in person within the specified time limit which will be announced later.

All envelopes or packages containing titles must be legibly addressed as follows: "Movie Play Title Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., P. O. Box 230," and each letter or package must have the name and address of the sender legibly written or stamped on the upper left-hand corner.

As all pictures in the Test will contain written or printed matter, if mailed, it is absolutely necessary that the package be fully prepaid at postal letter rates, as mail of this character goes to the postoffice as first-class matter. The Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser reserve the right to refuse to consider any sets of titles on which charges for postal delivery are not fully prepaid.

There will be no title or answer book to buy. Lists of Movie Titles will be printed in the Boston American each day and Sunday Advertiser. This list appearing will contain among others the correct titles.

Participants who desire further information should address their inquiries to the Movie Play Title Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass. Questions will be answered as far as possible through the columns of the Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser. If participants desire personal replies, they should enclose sufficient postage for such a reply, or they may phone Main 6180 or call in person.

The Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser reserves the right to make any change in, or addition to, these rules that may from time to time seem necessary for fairly and properly conducting the Test, and the decision of the Boston American Movie Play Title Editor on any question which may arise will be absolutely final, and the entry of a participant is a complete acceptance of all conditions and regulations now made or to be made.

DETAILS OF THE MOVIE PLAY TITLE TEST, WITH NAMES OF THE CO-OPERATING THEATRES, WILL BE FOUND ON PAGE 17

$10,000,000 ASKED FOR IRELAND

National Relief Committee Starts Drive; Acknowledge Local Donations Received

New England's liberality is strikingly appealed to in a telegram received here from the National Committee for Relief in Ireland, inaugurating a nation-wide drive for $10,000,000.

Besides the officers of the committee, the appeal is signed by Hon. Joseph P. Tumulty, Hon. William Randolph Hearst, Jane Addams, Elizabeth Marbury, Governor Russell of Mississippi, Governor Morrow of Kentucky, Governor Shoup of Colorado, George R. Curtiss, Charles G. Dawes, Bernard M. Baruch, Henry Morgenthau, Charles Nagel and David Starr Jordan.

The appeal makes it plain the Irish relief is non-sectarian, non-political and solely humanitarian. It declares the plight of the civilian population of Ireland is even worse than that of Belgium during the occupation.

Response to the appeal of the Massachusetts Committee for Relief of Ireland was very generous yesterday.

Contributions included: Rev. Father William F. Powers, pastor of St. Rose's Church, Chelsea, $216.53 (collected in his parish); Fraternity of United Irish No. 355, $50; Jamaica Plain Council 120, Knights of Columbus, $100; Daniel D. McPherson, Edward Carroll and Joseph F. McKeever, $25 each; Charitable Irish Society, $1,000; T. H. Brannan, Framingham, $500 contributed by the A. O. H. from an entertainment and lecture; Brockton Lodge of Elks, No. 164, $100; James H. Vahey, a check for $125, $75 being for himself; Division No. 12, A. O. H., Braintree, $25.

James H. Devlin, Jr., secretary to the police commissioner, Boston, sent in a contribution, wishing Godspeed to the cause, New England contributions should be sent to Joseph H. O'Neil, treasurer, No. 166 Devonshire street.

No Hush Money Should Be Paid Colombia

The proposition to pay $25,000,000 to Colombia for alleged violation of her rights to payment for the Panama strip is no less offensive, extravagant and indefensible with the apology eliminated from the measure than it was when it still placed the United States in the position of a self-confessed malefactor.

Colombian politicians, playing the game of blackmail, defeated the original treaty by which the United States proposed to pay that country for the canal strip. They thought that by holding off they could get more, most of which would have gone into their pockets.

Panama politicians, alert to the possibilities of the situation, organized the comical revolution which, at the cost of one Chinaman killed while peacefully smoking in his bunk, threw off the yoke of Colombia and diverted the stream of Yankee gold into Panamanian pockets.

It was the most notable service of Theodore Roosevelt to the world that he discerned in this situation the opportunity to act swiftly and intelligently and thus secure the Panama Canal for the world's commerce.

Had the Colombian politicians who are now pushing this demand for hush money had their way, the building of the canal would have been indefinitely deferred. It might not have been completed at the time of the beginning of the World War, in which event it would necessarily have been abandoned until the close of that contest, and might not have been in operation today.

All that Colombia could do to encompass such delay was done, and done only in order that a bigger portion of graft might have been available for the politicians then in control of her government.

It is sheer impudence for that country to come now demanding the payment that she once refused. Payment has been made, and honorably, to the Republic of Panama, in which sovereignty over the canal strip was vested.

Senator Lodge, who now urges this payment, was formerly strenuously and outspokenly against it. His sole argument today for thus raiding the United States Treasury, which has been tapped for the benefit of pretty nearly every nation of the world from Liberia north, is that it will improve our standing in Latin America.

And for how long will it improve it? Just long enough for every other Central American government to cook up a claim for a few millions on Uncle Sam and call on the Panama precedent to support it.

This Interests Workmen

Or It Ought to Interest Them

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

Workingmen are interested in this. It seems that railroad shop rules made it necessary to call in six mechanics, in order to change a nozzle tip in the front end of a locomotive.

One sixteen-year-old boy could have done it alone. A boilermaker and his helper had to open the door, only boilermakers could touch the door of the BOILER.

A pipeman and his helper had to remove the blower pipe, that is PIPEMAN'S work.

A machinist and his helper had to remove the tip. And the six men had to be used to shut the door and put back the pipe.

This system was built up under government control, partly because the employes of private owners left in charge of the railroads wanted the government control to fail. They encouraged every stupidity.

The thing is mainly due, however, to the folly of workmen, unable to realize that all any workman ever gets in this world is what SOME OTHER WORKMAN PRODUCES, or to realize that when workmen plan to waste their labor or cut down production they attack the prosperity of the entire working class. We cheat ourselves when we think we are cheating others.

No one knows better than the railroad worker what has been done in the last few years to cut down labor's productiveness.

Every railroad man has seen the gangs of laborers moving so slowly that you could hardly see them move. Every railroad man knows how earnestly the effort was made to put TWO men where one could have done the work.

For all that nonsense, the WORKMEN will pay.

The only road to prosperity for workmen is to MAKE A DAY'S WORK VALUABLE AND PRODUCTIVE TO THE MAXIMUM, and at the same time, fight to get GOOD PAY for good work.

Any man who thinks he is cheating his employer is cheating the public and himself, by cutting down the value of one unit in the population.

Any fool knows that the total wealth and prosperity of a country must depend on the TOTAL PRODUCTION OF THE LABOR OF THAT COUNTRY.

Punish the Murder-Inciter

The negro who foully and brutally murdered an estimable young woman of Perth Amboy, formerly of Somerville, the other day in his confession declares that he committed the crime when crazed by drinking gin.

Even before the Eighteenth Amendment prohibited the sale of intoxicating liquor the rumseller could be held liable for unlawful or criminal acts committed by persons to whom he had sold liquor.

Today, under Federal law, the sale of the poisonous liquor to the murderer was a criminal offense even without reference to the execrable act it stimulated him to commit. Moral responsibility for the crime is shared by the seller of liquor and the murderer. The punishment should be shared likewise.

Anyone committing a felony, if the felony results in murder, is guilty of murder even though murder was not intended. Liquor selling is not a felony, but a misdemeanor. But the police who raided the place where the negro got his gin, found liquor and there are witnesses of the sale to the negro.

The seller has been indicted and he should be punished to the fullest extent of the law.

U. S. SHIPS NOW HIRING AMERICANS

Nellie Bly Gets Good News From Number of Seamen Who See General Awakening by Owners and Masters of Vessels

By Nellie Bly

THE word has gone forth. Americans for American ships, not only crews, but freight and passengers.

The masters of American ships are taking a firm stand. Americans who never before thought of it are now sailing on American ships. And business houses, whose only thought was to get their shipments off by the first boat, are now carefully labelling everything to be shipped by American vessels.

It remains for the government to be as patriotic to vessels flying the American flag as the citizens are. It is plainly the duty of Postmaster-General Will H. Hays to issue instructions that American mail must go on American boats.

Last week, several Americans who had booked passage on British liners woke up to the fact that it was unpatriotic. They cancelled their reservations and sailed on American boats. Bully for them. They are the pioneers in the line that we must all follow.

This Ship Manned Properly

I received a radio from Captain Rasmussen of the steamship Hudsonian, via Hampton Roads, Va., as follows:

"Nellie Bly, McAlpin Hotel, New York:

"Received your letter. Good news to me. Have sailed with crew of 90 per cent Americans. Implore masters American ship follow example.

"CAPTAIN RASMUSSEN,
"S. S. Hudsonian."

Bully for Captain Rasmussen. Now it's up to the masters of all American ships to follow his example.

The masters are kings of their domain. They can make their ships and crews what they will. The day of controlling a ship's crew with a revolver and a blackjack is passing. The American master is not a brute. And he doesn't want to command brutes with brute force.

American seamen are free born creatures with the blood of equality in their veins. They know how to obey and will give obedience to their superior officers, but they in turn demand humane treatment, clean quarters, wholesome food and the proper working hours.

There are captains and officers (but thank God they are not Americans), who state boldly and unashamed their preference for foreign seamen because the foreigner will take any sort of abuse. He will bank four high without a complaint, and he will eat wormy oatmeal and bad meat perched on the edge of his bunk. And, of course, will work for less wages.

But the American lines are endeavoring to obey the American laws in regard to seafaring men. Naturally, this superior treatment and better surroundings and higher pay bring the foreigners flocking to the American ships for work.

But the American crews on American vessels must be one hundred per cent. Americans.

Such laws as prevail must be enforced, and if there are not sufficient laws to establish the American seamen in their chosen profession, then we must have new legislation. Here is an interesting letter:

"Dear Miss Bly—Your article on Saturday had the strength to do things. I was informed today that something took place at No. 45 Broadway. On Monday morning American citizens had the preference for jobs at the Sea Service office, at No. 26 Park place. Americans were picked out first. This is something new. I hope it continues. The fact is, thousands of Americans have left our ports and returned to their homes all over the country, as there was no employment for them on American ships. The U. S. Shipping Board trained these men on training ships and in camps, and then set them adrift, after calling them away from shore positions.

"I went into Sea Service the other day. There were 250 seamen there of all classes. There were no Americans there, as they had got jobs on Monday and Tuesday in preference to the alien. The chief engineer of the vessel I am working on discharged seven aliens and ordered Americans to be sent in their places, after reading your article.

"You can get information at the Barge Office as to the number of Americans on American ships from the articles of all ships clearing this port. Seventy-five per cent. of alien seamen are unable to speak English. The Shipping Board ships are all government vessels, just as much so as a battleship of our navy is a government vessel, and Americans should get the preference on them.

"Perhaps you can't get a great number of Americans to shovel coal, but our ships are nearly all burning oil. This makes a fireman's job a good one—no hard work. Oiling and tending water are good jobs for Americans and lead to promotion; also the deck engineer job. We have plenty of men ashore willing to take a job in the steward department, and in the deck department also. The Seamen's Union is working in the interest of alien seamen. If it is controlled by foreigners.

"It may interest you to know that two alien delegates were in the war. No man could get a job without first getting his card. There is still one there, with his rolltop desk outside in the corner. He is a foreigner. Some of the union officials were in the employ of British concerns before the war as shipping masters. It's about time this ring was put out of Uncle Sam's service.

"AMERICAN SEAMAN."

Conditions in Shipyards

"Dear Nellie Bly—I read all your articles and am especially interested in the stand you are taking in regard to the invasion of the American ships by British seamen.

"My husband served in the navy during the war, and after being discharged went to work at his trade—machinist in the railroad shops. About a month ago work was slack and the shops were closed, so he concluded to go to sea. He got work at a shipyard in Hoboken, and even there the limeys rule supreme. Our 'My Country 'Tis of Thee' will be turned into 'God Save the King' if something isn't done soon to waken the companies who prefer limeys to American citizens.

"My husband can draw some and your articles inspired him to draw the inclosed picture. I would like if you could publish it just to show the fellows who have already written to you how an ex-gob foresees the outcome of your earnest efforts to help American seamen.

"Now, dear Miss Bly, please take the picture of yourself cheerfully, as the ability to draw women seems to be quite beyond him.

"It seems every one who writes to you tells you of themselves. May I? I have the dearest boy baby in all the world, who is to be one year old on the 23d of this month. Two days after I shall be nineteen. My husband is only twenty-four. We may be young, but, oh! we are so happy in our three little cozy rooms. I always look first to see if any of your writing is in the paper before I look at any other part. I should just love to be able to see the dear little boys and girls you have described in your readers.

"I must close now, hoping you will publish the picture. MAE."

Here is an interesting letter:

"Miss Bly—The International Mercantile Marine is composed of twelve and one-half per cent. Americans and eighty-seven and one-half per cent British. Now, since things are slow, all the American boats operated by them have been tied up and the British boats have been kept in operation. Couldn't we hear something from Washington regarding this?

"AMERICAN SHIPOWNER."

PICTURES TO HELP INDUCE SLEEP

By The Spectator

HERE are some thoughts to go to sleep on.

The main reason for insomnia is that we get to thinking on things that wake us. As business and battle, love and laughter, woe and worry, insult and interest.

What we need, in order to induce that calm detachment necessary to invite Morpheus, is the mental vision that pleases but excites not.

So here are a few from which you may select. Possibly you can make others for yourself that will suit you better.

1. A Woman Standing in a Door. A house in a pleasant valley. Vine covered. Home suggesting. The woman, comely and expectant. Intimations—home, rest, welcome, cheer, love.

2. A Great Tree. The sun shines hot. Beneath the grateful shade of the tree is the velvet grass. Does not a Tree caress your imagination soothingly? Something of tree-love must be in our blood, an inheritance from aboreal ancestors.

Peaceful Lake.

3. A Lake. Of all water-bodies the most peaceful. Let it not be too large, for you must see the other shore, that your vision may have bounds, and thus restfulness.

4. A Creek. Not a big and rushing river, but a quiet and sauntering creek. A deep pool here. And above it bending, a tree, inviting the harried soul to this Nature's Monastery, this Cloistered nook in God's own temple.

5. A Mountain. Let it be high, conical and snow-dipped. Let it have broad shoulders, that it may float over the landscape as a cloud, or brood upon the earth as a hen upon her chicks. Here you can suck power and vastness, stability, sureness and eternity from the universe.

Cows Near Barn

6. Cows Ruminating. They stand in the shade of the barn. Their wide eyes speak utter calm. The slow chewing of their cud is Nature's most contemplative symbol.

7. An English Church in a Country Graveyard. Ivy covered. Swallows flying about their belfry home. The tombstone leaning, moss-covered, with none of the revolting newness of death, but only suggesting the dead of long ago, peaceful, forgotten.

Such scenes should be entertained as require no effort of memory or of invention, such as create themselves, or "just come."

We should be detached and mildly interested spectators.

The detachment grows. The scenes blur. They merge into dreams. And we sleep.

Letters to the Editor

Polluting Cochituate

Editor Boston American:

If you can find space enough in your fair and impartial newspaper to print the following remarks, I shall be very thankful.

In regard to the conference called by Mayor Peters recently, in which he proposed to organize an opposition to the Lake Cochituate Boating Bill now struggling through the Legislature, I would like to put a question to the members of that opposition. If the metropolitan system of filtering, straining and purifying can do away with the pollution caused by such refuse as waste matter from horses and dogs, surface oil from streets, drippings from automobiles, tubercular, catarrhal and other diseased expectorations, all of which is carried by rain water into the lake, some of it through filter beds and some directly. If this system can do all this, what is there so polluting about a few boats and canoes that their elaborate system can not cope with?

Just a glance at the humane side of the question. This Winter a man with five children, a wife in the hospital, out of work for three months; broke, butcher and grocer refuse him credit; he lives on shores of said lake, children hungry, he decides to fish through the ice so as to feed children. Watchman tells him to get off or go to jail; he got off. This man neither smokes nor drinks. He said to me, "For God's sake, man, what am I going to do?"

You tell him, Mr. Mayor.

ORIGIN OF TYPHUS FEVER BUGS

By Garrett P. Serviss

"Wherefrom starts the life of the insects that spread typhus? I have heard people say that they come from dirt, but I have noticed that they may not exist where there are dirty surroundings, and be found where there are clean surroundings.—J. K., Chicago."

ALL living creatures without exception—as far as scientific study has been able to discover—come from previously living creatures of similar species.

The statement may be varied to read: As far as we now know, life, at the present time, is a continuous process, handed on from one generation to the next, and constantly based solely on preceding life. We cannot discern the beginning of the chain, nor do we know how to turn non-living into living substance and thus start a new chain of life ourselves.

And yet we do know that life never exists in any plant or animal except by virtue of a certain substance called "protoplasm." We do know that this substance by itself exhibits the characteristics of life, and is the only substance that does so, and we do know that this substance is a chemical compound made up of ordinary elements, but put together in a way that we have been unable to imitate.

Must Wait for the Key.

Professor Huxley said, many years ago: "To enable us to say that we know anything about the experimental origination of life the investigator ought to be able to take inorganic matters, such as carbonic acid, ammonia, water and salines, in any sort of inorganic combination and be able to build them up into protein matter (protoplasm), and then that protein matter ought to begin to live in an organic form. That nobody has done yet, and I suspect it will be a long while before anybody does do it."

The key may appear at any moment, but still we must wait, and we ought to wait with considerable confidence in view of such achievements as Butschili's chemical "model of protoplasm." In this product of the laboratory the general appearances and conduct of living protoplasm are wonderfully imitated, the only failure being in the power of recuperation. Gradually the imitation protoplasm, which has seemed for a short time to be actually endowed with life, struggling blindly to clutch the rungs of the ascending ladder, sinks back and is submerged in the inorganic deep.

The insects of which you speak are only born of predecessors like themselves. Like all other kinds of living creatures, they must have a suitable environment in order to exist and flourish. But such an environment cannot give birth to them; it can only maintain them by supplying the kind of nourishment that they need.

Noxious Species Wiped Out.

When you find the environment and not the insects, you may draw the inevitable conclusion that either they have never been there or they have been eradicated, leaving no germ of their kind of life behind. And when you find the insects without the environment, you may be sure they will not be there long.

It is no vain dream to imagine certain noxious species driven into extinction, for geological history shows that many formerly powerful races of animals and plants have completely vanished, leaving only a few bones and petrifactions to tell of them, and there is reason to believe that their elimination was more or less directly the result of sweeping contests between rival forms, contests not the less effective because they were involuntary.
